President Hoover Addresses 5000 Persons In Rain

COMPLETION OF CHANNEL CELEBRATED

Tribute Is Paid to Engineering Skill By Chief Executive of Country

DEDICATE MONUMENT

President Leaves Tonight For Louisville Where He Will Make Address

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Celebrating completion of the nine-foot channel throughout the 100-mile course of the Ohio river from Pittsburgh to Cairo, President Hoover today paid tribute to the contribution which engineering skill and learning has made to the advancement of modern industrial organization.

"It is the glory of our scientific age that its early processes in the end bring results that make childhood stronger and happier, and give to manhood and womanhood a life richer and more varied," the president declared.

His address was delivered in a drizzling rain in Eden park, overlooking the Ohio. Approximately 5000 persons cheered the president.

The ceremonies were arranged by the Ohio Valley Improvement association, which blazed the trail for the river improvement for a quarter of a century.

Secretary of War Good and Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, were participants in the celebration, with the chief executive and Mrs. Hoover.

Dedicate Monument
The president's speech was in dedication of a monument in Eden park commemorating completion of the new artery of commerce.

"The engineering mind about which I see so much in the paper," the president said, "here does come to the surface and luxuriates in appreciation of a great engineering job well done."

The president told his audience that today's ceremonies marked a new epoch in the history of national development.

"The whole Ohio valley and the nation as well should be congratulated upon this occasion."

"This new instrument of commerce, from which untold blessings will come year after year, is an enduring monument to those patient men of my own profession whose lives are spent in devising means to increase the comfort and convenience of the world."

President and Mrs. Hoover and their official party will devote today and tomorrow to the Ohio river celebration. After the Eden park address, the president's program called for a luncheon in the Gibson hotel, to which 500 persons were invited, and his departure at 2 p. m. on the government steamer Greenbrier for Louisville, where tomorrow night he will deliver the principal address of his tour.

Arrives In Cincinnati
The presidential special arrived at Cincinnati at 9 a. m. from Dearborn, Mich., where the chief executive participated yesterday in celebrating the 50th anniversary of the electric light.

The text of the president's message follows:
"My fellow countrymen and women:

Machine Gun Found In Empty House

SAN JOSE, Calif., Oct. 22.—(UP)—Headquarters of a band of gangsters is believed to have been found here.

A mounted machine gun and army rifle were found in the attic of an empty house here yesterday by prospective tenants. The machine gun was pointed directly at the attic door.

Police are searching for fingerprints and other evidence that may trace the owners in the hope that it may lead to those who committed the Redco bank robbery, in which Constable Arthur McDonald was killed, and the McAvoy train robbery.

ALBERT B. FALL CASE MAY GET TO JURY TODAY

Defense Attorneys Continue Argument Before 12 Jurists in Capitol

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Frank J. Hogan, Washington attorney who has become famous as the defender of oil millionaires indicted as result of the senate teapot dome investigation continued his plea in the District of Columbia supreme court today for vindication of former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall.

The case may reach the jury late today.

As the member of the Harding cabinet entrusted with custodianship of government oil lands, Fall was the official with whom the oil men dealt. He is now on trial charged with accepting a $100,000 bribe from E. L. Doheny, multimillionaire petroleum king of the west.

Hogan started his plea yesterday after former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, had summed up the government's case. For the theme of his opening remarks, Hogan took Pomerene's closing statement that personal ambition rather than patriotism had induced Doheny to leave the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve of California.

Pomerene had quoted Samuel Johnson's famous statement: "Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel."

"Do you know this author whom the prosecution quotes as its last authority," Hogan shouted, rushing to the open space in front of the jury box. "He is the man who said Washington should have been hanged from a yard arm and called members of the Revolutionary army the scum of Europe."

"He is the man who insulted the ancestors of every one of you, the patriots who fought for American liberty."

Hogan had apparently anticipated the Johnson quotation, which has been used by prosecution counsel in previous oil trials. After his peroration on Johnson's views, Hogan launched an impassioned defense plea which he is to conclude today.

DRIVER KILLED AS CAR LEAVES ROAD

HANFORD, Calif., Oct. 22.—(UP)—The place in the Devil's Den-Coach road that two months ago cost the lives of Kings County Supervisor Mark Carter and his road superintendent, William Stratton, cost another life yesterday.

The latest victim was Bell Cook, 21, Bakerfield, field superintendent for the Consolidated Steel Corporation. The two fatal accidents had almost identical circumstances, taking place only three feet apart.

Cook was driving up a short incline and turned to the left to avoid a pool of road oil. As he reached the crest of the hill he met a car from the other direction driven by Philip Albers of Los Angeles.

The front wheels of the two machines struck and Cook's car went over the grade, killing him almost instantly.

Condition Of Edison Much Better Today

Famous Inventor Who Collapsed Last Night Able To Take Short Walk

DETROIT, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Refreshed by a night's sleep at the Henry Ford home, Thomas Alva Edison today had almost entirely recovered from the attack of nervousness and fatigue which almost marred light's golden jubilee in his honor.

No information regarding Edison's condition would be given out at the Ford home today, but it was learned the 82 year old inventor had taken a short walk about the Ford estate despite damp weather.

Edison wore his crown of laurels happily although feebly today. The inventor, his 83 years bearing more heavily on his strength under the tax of elaborate ceremonies yesterday in which the world paid tribute to his genius and still semi-convalescent from a recent attack of pneumonia, almost collapsed last night.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, where he was taken after the strenuous day, he was resting easily today and physicians who had visited him said they did not believe he was in danger.

In a replica of the laboratory in which he perfected his first incandescent light bulb, the electrical wizard performed again in the epochal feat. Then he almost collapsed.

The laboratory had been constructed at the new Edison institute of technology, which was dedicated by the ceremonies. Rejoicing his strength Edison went to the banquet table in the administration building of the institute where he spoke to millions of radio listeners over the world, as well as to the 500 persons seated in the hall.

His talk was the essence of modesty and simplicity. He stressed the importance of the work of pioneers in the electrical field before him and of the loyal men who worked with him.

"If I have contributed to the happiness of my fellow man, I am happy," he said.

President Hoover then spoke, paying tribute to men of science.

BANDITS KILL CAFE MANAGER; GET $1500

STOCKTON, Calif., Oct. 22.—(UP)—After killing Frank Prasher, 35, roadhouse operator, four bandits looted the Riverside Inn near here early today and escaped with $1500.

The holdup occurred as Prasher and his partner, Frank Rae, were closing the resort for the night. The bandits walked in and fired two shots directly at Prasher, both of which took effect.

As he slumped to the floor, the bandits forced Rae and several employees to lie down while they went through their pockets and the cash register in a leisurely manner.

Before leaving the bandits severed the telephone cord and disabled several automobiles to cut off pursuit.

SMILE THROUGH TODAY; FORGET YESTERDAY, IS PHILOSOPHY OF EDDIE GUEST, "NEWSPAPERMAN"

"WHAT! An apostle of cheerfulness? Indeed I am not an apostle of anything. I am a newspaper writer!" And with the words, "Eddie" Guest, often hailed as America's poet laureate, disclaimed the honors and thus his admiring public would heap upon him, and sought a species of anonymity behind the one of his choice—a "newspaper writer." But at the very moment that he refused to pose as an apostle of anything, let alone cheerfulness, his eyes twinkled with laughter, his nervously artistic mouth curled rebelliously up at the camera, and the little "laughing wrinkles" that live only on faces accustomed to smiles, and not frowns, crept from their hiding places.

It was in a little haven formed by two chairs drawn corner-wise in the big foyer of St. Ann's Inn, that Guest, honored today by Santa Ana Rotarians, and honoring them in turn by consenting to address them as a special favor to Robert L. Brown, paused amidst the commotion to outline some of his philosophies of life—those philosophies that everyone knows and appreciates through the medium of his verse. And in the very fact that he was able at will to withdraw himself from the throng gathered to pay him homage, was the proof of his statement that he is essentially a newspaper writer. "In telephone and city directories back home, where we have to state our classification, I am proud to write 'newspaperman' after my name," he declared.

"The titles that friends and admirers offer us are decorations that we may wear and look upon to admire—but how do we know how soon they will be wrested from us and bestowed upon someone else? Of course we may always retain the memory that once we wore them, but after all they are not nearly so important as the things we really earn for ourselves."

Declare Conviction of Carolina Textile Workers "Class Verdict"

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 22.—(UP)—Protesting that the conviction of seven union textile workers in the Adairsville murder trial was the result of a "class verdict," the defense laid plans today for a vigorous appeal.

After pronouncing sentence yesterday Judge M. V. Barnhill allowed 90 days for the appeal. The American Civil Liberties union, backing the defense, has announced it will carry the case to the United States supreme court if necessary.

"This is a class verdict," said a statement issued by the defendants. "The Southern capitalist class has won a temporary victory over the working class. We are innocent of all the charges against us, of which the jury, its prejudice inflamed by the prosecution, convicted us in accordance with the dictates of the mill owners. Not the evidence but our beliefs convicted."

"We are guilty of believing that workers must organize for a struggle for better conditions and that workers have a right to self defense. That is our crime, a crime against the bosses, nothing else."

5 ESCAPED NARCOTIC ADDICTS CAPTURED

SPADRA, Calif., Oct. 22.—(UP)—While state and county police continued their search, officials of the Spadra state hospital announced today that five of the 17 narcotic addicts who escaped yesterday had been captured.

The patients fled Sunday after slugging two guards and breaking through a high wire fence. Joseph Kelly and Charles Martin, who were found hiding beside the railroad tracks near Spadra, were said to have been the ring leaders.

Talented Poet Pleases With Famous Verse

Practically Every Service Club in Orange County Is Represented

THAT EDDIE GUEST, poet and philosopher, is popular in Orange county was demonstrated at the meeting at St. Ann's Inn, today, of the Santa Ana Rotary club, where approximately 450 men and women from various points in Orange county assembled to pay him honor and to hear him in an address.

The poet was made available to the club through the persistent efforts of Robert L. Brown, who, it was asserted by President Ralph Smedley, had been working for three years to get the distinguished writer to address the local service club.

Stories of a comical nature were mingled with serious thoughts contained in readings given by the talented poet, and from the beginning of his address his auditors smiled with him in his funny stories and gave heart interest to the finer interpretations of life he presented in his talk and in verse.

Most of his poetry was preceded by a related incident that made more effective the philosophy of life as pictured in the lines read.

The speaker related that in his school days he would look out of a schoolhouse window and, seeing adults passing, would wonder how full grown people could make mistakes—and then discover in his contacts with humans in his early adult age, that grown-ups did not know everything and didn't have

Plan No Change In Enforcement Of Prohibition Laws

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(UP)—No change in federal enforcement methods are anticipated by Prohibition Commissioner Doran as a result of the action of the U. S. supreme court yesterday in upholding, in effect, the ruling of a lower court permitting state dry agents to search a home without a warrant, it became known today.

Doran said federal agents are prohibited by section 6 of the Willis Campbell act to search a dwelling without a warrant.

So long as this provision remains on the statute books, Doran said, the treasury's operatives will consider it binding on their conduct. The search of dwellings, not occupied as dwellings, does not require a search warrant when there is evidence to assume that a violation of a law is being committed on the premises.

YOUNG BANDIT FAILS IN ROBBERY EFFORT

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 22.—(UP)—Police today searched for a "baby" bandit who attacked Mrs. J. A. De Pelase last night and tried to steal her purse.

The woman was walking home when a boy about 10 or 12 years old lunged at her and tried to snatch her purse away. She battled with him and was pulled to the ground. She screamed, whereupon the "baby" bandit fled in flight.

Mrs. De Pelase sustained bruises and abrasions from her tussle with the child.

Police believe he is the same boy who attacked two women two weeks ago and escaped with their purses.

Longfellows' Club Formed By Tall Ones

Planned as one of the most unique organizations on the Santa Ana Junior college campus, the Longfellows' club is to be started this week by the tall boys in the school. Membership requirements will be set to require all members to be at least six feet in height. It is expected that the club will petition the city council to enforce the city ordinance regulating the height of awnings in the business district.

Those organizing the group are Charlie Greenleaf, Al Kluthe, Robert Paddock, John "Skeg" Dunlap, Herman Hook, Rodney Chamberlain, Ernie Stump and Vernon Valentine.

BOULDER DAM WORK CERTAIN TO BE SPEEDED

Allocation Plan of Wilbur Is Almost Certain to Be Accepted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Prospects for speeding work on Boulder dam appeared brighter to interior department officials today than in months.

Acceptance of Secretary of Interior Wilbur's allocation of power, expected confidently, will enable the department to conclude contracts for power, a prerequisite to asking the December session of congress for an appropriation to begin work.

Wilbur's allocation, presented yesterday to representatives of western power interests, gives the Metropolitan water district 50 per cent of the 550,000 horsepower to be developed, Los Angeles 25 per cent and the Southern California Edison company 25 per cent. Nevada and Arizona will be entitled to 15 per cent each, to be taken from the previous allocations whenever they choose to apply for it.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Georges Clemenceau, former premier of France, claimed victory today against a serious heart attack which brought him to the verge of death.

Last night was a comparatively easy one for the sick statesman. He fell asleep shortly after the doctors left at 9 p. m. But a Sister of Mercy remained at his bedside throughout the night in case he should need assistance.

Before departing, Dr. Charles Laubry, noted heart specialist, declared himself satisfied that the crisis had passed at least temporarily.

WORKERS SEE ADVANTAGE OF GETTING EARLY START IN CONTEST FOR PRIZES

Realizing the opportunity which exists at this early stage of The Santa Ana Register's $10,000 prize campaign to be among the first to enter the campaign, and with the incentive of earning one of the major awards, new workers are entering daily.

These workers are given 100,000 extra votes for each ten new three months' subscription, or the equivalent, they turn in. The old (renewal) subscriptions earning one half the number of votes as the new subscriptions.

In this campaign, which after all, is a good business proposition paying ten per cent on renewal and new subscriptions to all who do not earn major awards, there is the utmost opportunity to make money.

COLLECT NO MONEY
No money is collected for subscriptions by the contestants. The subscriber simply agrees to take The Register for 3 months, 6 months or a year to pay the carrier each month for the paper.

All commissions earned by workers who do not secure a major award are paid in actual cash. This is one of the most liberal commission offers ever made in Santa Ana.

It costs absolutely nothing to enter the campaign and at no time during the campaign can a contestant spend any of his own money. In every case in this contest the order for a subscription must be a legitimate one.

Any person who has the time to spare can earn a goodly sum in this campaign. It is your chance to make money.

Tells Jury That Dancer Was in His Office as Late As Midnight One Night

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Alexander Pantages, 54-year-old Greek who ran a small Klondike stake into a great theater business, denied to a jury today that he attacked 17-year-old Eunice Pringle.

Gesticulating wildly and talking excitedly he claimed that Miss Pringle and not himself was the aggressor in the disturbance between them in his "conference room" on August 9.

As soon as they were inside the room, Pantages testified, Miss Pringle closed the door, started to scream and at the same time tore at his clothing.

Instead of attacking her as she contended he struggled with her in an attempt to put her outside, he said.

He vehemently denied that he had made any advances toward the young dancer, that he had attempted to strangle her or that he had consummated an assault.

Appears at Ease
He appeared to be at ease as he plunged into his version of what happened on August 9 in "the mystery room" of his theater building where Miss Pringle claimed she was attacked.

Under the questioning of his attorneys he described himself as a showman, gave his age as 54 and said he had lived in Los Angeles for 10 years.

Court reporters had difficulty with the answers since Pantages, a Greek, speaks with a heavy accent.

"When did you first meet Eunice Pringle?" he was asked.

"I knew her as Eulita Deyo—the name she adopted for the stage—I met her first in May of this year."

Pantages said she came to his office to ask him to place her act on the Pantages vaudeville circuit.

"Her play was named 'The Prince of Hollywood,'" he said.

"What was it like?"
Play Suggestive
"It was suggestive." The answer was ruled out and Pantages was ordered to describe the play and not to give his conclusions.

He said he told Miss Pringle

LOVE FLYER HOPS OFF ACROSS OCEAN

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Oct. 22.—(UP)—P. F. Dittman, an unknown American aviator with only a brief experience in flying, set out today, alone and without advance warning, on a daring attempt to span the Atlantic ocean.

Dittman left the field at Harbor Grace, New Foundland, at 12:30 p. m., rising without difficulty in his small monoplane, the Golden Hind. He passed over Conception Bay on an easterly course, making about 125 miles an hour. Twenty minutes after starting, he had passed out of sight over the Atlantic.

The Golden Hind carried 100 gallons of gasoline, considered sufficient for 25 hours of flying at a cruising speed of 110 miles per hour. The plane has a top speed of 125 miles an hour. The craft is a Baring N. 5.3 monoplane.

Dittman is 31 and comes from Billings, Mont.

300 Votes Cast At Noon Today

Approximately 300 citizens of the harbor district went to the polls this morning to vote on the $200,000 harbor improvement project. A heavy vote was anticipated this afternoon. Newport Beach has 1200 registered voters.

to share in the dedication of this monument glorifying at all time the completion of a nine-foot channel for the full length of the Ohio river. The engineering mind, about which I see so much in the newspapers, here does come to the surface and luxuriates in appreciation of a great engineering job well done. This new instrument of commerce, from which untold blessings will come year after year, is an enduring monument to these patient men of my own profession whose lives are spent in devising means to increase the comfort and convenience of the world.

"But men of every mould have wrought with equal bravery in this transformation of the wild beauty of the Ohio river into the not less beautiful but more tractable stream of today. The engineer found the practical means, but many others contributed to the vision, courage and persistence needed to this accomplishment. Statesmen, river men and business men may share the glory. The elders present may well regret the absence of such stalwart figures as Col. William E. Merrill and Capt. William B. Rodgers, whose ingenuity and dauntless faith bore so large a part in this achievement.

"I personally feel the absence of Senator Theodore Burton, at whose bedside in Washington I have recently stood. His work as chairman of the historic inland waterways commission, appointed by President Roosevelt in 1907, gave the foundation upon which this great development has been created. The report of that commission in 1916 has been the Bible of waterways improvement. Its first result was the act of 1910, with which began the present project, now brought to successful conclusion. It reflected not only the clarity of mind with which the senator had endowed public issues for a generation but also the broad humanity of his spirit, that dwelt with especial concern upon the problems of equity involved and upon the welfare of the whole body of men and women of the country for whose benefit the program was primarily undertaken.

Lauds Longworth
"Of Speaker Longworth, who fortunately is present, it should be recalled that he was one of the founders of the Ohio Valley Improvement association and has both privately and as an officer of the government worked indefatigably in the cause of this development for more than a quarter of a century. SMILE THROUGH TODAY; FORGET YESTERDAY, IS PHILOSOPHY OF EDDIE GUEST, "NEWSPAPERMAN"

Little Things Count

"And those things are earned daily by constant attention to the little things of life. And no matter how many successes we achieve, who knows but that great failure may come to wipe out the memory of all the little successes. Do you suppose Napoleon, sitting there alone on St. Helena, remembered his sweeping victories? I don't believe so. I believe that the thing he constantly dwelt upon was that final defeat at Waterloo. Can't you see, then, that my belief is that we should meet each day with the determination to live up to the best there is in us, so we may have no colossal failure to remember? Failure and defeat may be right around the corner—but on the other hand, maybe our most smashing success is waiting there." And in that cheering conclusion to a bit of thinking aloud, it seemed that one saw the soul of the real Eddie Guest—a soul always armed in preparation for battle and a possible defeat, but more eagerly anticipating success.

And then that agile mind of his took another path which brought it back to newspapers. His life has been with newspapers, and if impressions may be believed, always will be. "I am not a Theosophist," he declared, "but if there should be a future plane for me, I am going to ask to be another newspaper man—no, not an owner or publisher—I see no advance in that. I shall just ask to be born again, and then when I am about 11 or 12 years old, I'll ask to start in the newspaper game, and grow into a better newspaperman than I am now. That would be my idea of a higher plane."

Always Newspaperman
This must have been about the way in which Guest first received his start, one fancies. "I used to do all manner of writing," he explained, "features, too—which were always interesting. And then I would edge one of my verses in very gingerly, not certain whether it would be allowed to remain or not. I scarcely dared hope I might have a column for my own with the verse given prominence. It serve high remembrance in the records of this achievement.

"But the whole Ohio valley and the nation as well should be congratulated on this occasion. A new agency of service now begins its quiet labors for mankind. The twopath that led one Ohio boy to the White House has been modernized. But opportunity has been expanded by the abandonment of the twopath for the engine. It is the glory of our scientific age that its sooty processes in the end bring results that made childhood stronger and happier, and give to manhood and womanhood a life richer and more varied.

"This monument will ever remind the people of a great accomplishment."

didn't seem possible. But I kept on edging them in a little bit at a time, and after awhile it brought me my chance. And that is my life—I never get far away from newspapers—I haven't taken an actual vacation for years, and jaunts like this are just phases of the same game—I am not straying far and I never go without my typewriter. In fact, on the 31st of this month, I shall go back into the office and to my regular desk and routine of work."

Asked if he enjoyed the experience of meeting his admirers on such occasions as today's luncheon, Guest declared that it was a part of his life and an interesting part, but that it had no direct influence on his work or, as he expressed it, "it doesn't write tomorrow's column." However, he admitted that he occasionally gleaned a bit of inspiration from such contacts which was utilized in one of the poems for his column.

"Make no mistake," he pronounced, "we may prepare for tomorrow, but we actually live only for today. Yesterday is no longer important. It was important—yesterday, but not today. Tomorrow counts only in its relationship to the present, which is all-important as being the only thing we can grasp. It is the present moment that we must live in, struggle through, smile through, and wrest victory from." And with that sentiment which would seem to sum up all the cheerful philosophy of his great output of poetry, Eddie Guest, "Apostle of Cheerfulness," went forth to give his message to the Rotarians.

that it was not "fit for the circuit."

"She came back two days later," he testified, "but I told her my answer was final and that I couldn't use such a vulgar play. She kept coming back to the office. I guess I saw her four or five times during the daytime and about the same number at night."

"One night she was at my office at midnight. I can't say whether she was alone or not. This testimony was a direct contradiction to that of Miss Pringle who told the jury of six men and six women that she never had been near Pantages' office late at night."

In every detail his story was a direct contradiction to that told earlier in the trial by Miss Pringle. "When we went into the conference room we sat down facing the door," he said. "The door was open. I already had my coat off and she removed her coat and hat. I said: Go ahead and tell me about this important business you say you must tell me about but don't tell me any more about your act."

"She was very nervous and excited and she didn't answer me so I said: Come on, tell me. I'm in a hurry to get home."

"She said: 'You know what I want.' I said: 'No I don't.' Then she started screaming. She pushed the door shut and then we scuffled and I tried to put her out. Finally I got her to the door, but I had trouble forcing her out."

"After I got her out I arranged my clothing and then went upstairs to my office."

Pantages got down from the witness stand at the suggestion of his attorney and reenacted his version of the struggle to get Miss Pringle out of the conference room.

He wrestled vigorously with the door and finally threw himself out. He then returned to the witness stand to enter a special denial to such accusation made by Miss Pringle.

of the owners of this refrigerator

NO wonder the owner of a General Electric feels a glow of pride when he says, quietly, "Yes, we have a General Electric." For, which electric refrigerator can match his in efficiency, in quietness, in stamina, in trouble-free service?

The record of more than 350,000 in use with no owner having spent a dollar for repairs or service is one which truly challenges comparison.

The mechanism of the General Electric is so simple... it never needs oiling... it is hermetically sealed in a steel casing which keeps it forever dust-proof. It creates no radio interference. It has an accessible freezing regulator. It makes plenty of ice.

The cabinets are all-steel. They cannot warp. They are particularly easy to clean. Sturdiest hardware is bolted right into the steel frame. Self-closing door latch, gliders to protect your linoleums... And, of course, it automatically maintains a temperature several degrees below 50—the figure which medical authorities agree is the danger point in food preservation. I said: Go ahead and tell me about this important business you say you must tell me about but don't tell me any more about your act."

"She was very nervous and excited and she didn't answer me so I said: Come on, tell me. I'm in a hurry to get home."

"She said: 'You know what I want.' I said: 'No I don't.' Then she started screaming. She pushed the door shut and then we scuffled and I tried to put her out. Finally I got her to the door, but I had trouble forcing her out."

"After I got her out I arranged my clothing and then went upstairs to my office."

Pantages got down from the witness stand at the suggestion of his attorney and reenacted his version of the struggle to get Miss Pringle out of the conference room.

He wrestled vigorously with the door and finally threw himself out. He then returned to the witness stand to enter a special denial to such accusation made by Miss Pringle.

BOULDER DAM WORK CERTAIN TO BE SPEEDED

tives of the western interests indicate an almost unanimous acceptance of the Wilbur plan. There is, however, the possibility of Nevada may file an objection on November 12, which date Wilbur has set for hearings.

"I am delighted with the secretary's allocation," said William Whitsett, representing the Metropolitan water district. "It shows he has a thorough understanding of our problems."

W. B. Matthews, of Los Angeles, after a conference with Wilbur, said:

"The plan is very satisfactory. I do not anticipate any protest from Los Angeles. Some details regarding installation of machinery must be settled, but I believe Los Angeles will sign a contract on the basis of Wilbur's plan."

G. C. Ward, executive vice president of the Southern California Edison company, said:

"I am greatly pleased that so much progress has been made. We hope to conclude a contract within a reasonable time."

"Our allocation was not what we expected on the showing made," said George W. Malone, Nevada state engineer. Malone said his delegation would consider the proposals further before deciding whether a protest will be made.

MAY ATTEMPT TO LIMIT USE OF SUBMARINES

British officials, likewise, will be prevented by their agreement with the United States from committing their government regarding submarines. When the conference opens, however, the United States and Great Britain will have complete knowledge of the positions of the other three powers. That neither Washington nor London expects to achieve abolition of the submarine is acknowledged here.

An attempt will be made, it is believed, to limit the use of submarines against merchant shipping. If France could be persuaded to ratify that treaty, enabling it thereby to become immediately effective, Britain and the United States would be compensated for acknowledging that submarines had legitimate uses in supplementing smaller navies.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

After a long illness, you rediscover the beauty of the flowers, the grass, the hills and the sky, and people seem different. You are thoughtful and kind and they used to be. All these are just the same as they have always been, but they look new to you because you see them from a changed point of view. Subsequent to your death, hours of sorrow and desolation, if you draw near to the God of love, you will find your world transformed. What you only half appreciated before will now become supremely precious to you and God's sustaining power will bring new gladness and abiding peace.

Fat Girls! Here's A Tip For You

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive figure, free from fat figure that cannot fail to win admiration. Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses. Every morning take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast. Be sure and do this every morning for "it's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system. At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's life-giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure. Get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts at any drug store (lasts 2 months) with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back—Adv.

FIVE PLEDGES OF $750 EACH ARE ANNOUNCED

Members of the advance gifts committee of the Santa Ana community Chest were given a good shot of enthusiasm, last night, at their meeting in Ketter's cafe, with the announcement made by W. A. Taylor, president of the organization, that five pledges of $750 each had been signed up to lead off the drive for funds which got under way today when the members of this committee started their pre-campaign solicitations.

Although Chest officials refused to divulge the names of the donors of these gifts, owing to action taken last night by the executive committee voting that no general list of the subscribers and amounts be published, it was learned from other sources that the pledges announced last night were signed by O. H. Barr, J. P. Baumgartner, Excelsior Creamery company, Register Publishing company and First National bank.

Greatly Encouraged
The workers were greatly encouraged by the splendid start of the campaign. Taylor, in announcing the gifts, stated that he felt the interest thus manifested in the Chest objective by leading citizens was an index of the interest felt by the community at large and that it would result in the assurance of victory in the campaign for $50,000. The subscriptions were pointed out as particularly gratifying in view of the fact that last year there was only one such gift and that it was the largest single pledge.

Taylor, who was introduced by A. N. Zerman, chairman of the committee, told the workers on whom a large part of the burden of the campaign will fall that a careful study of the pledges made last year had convinced Chest officials of two important facts, that the per capita giving of the citizens of Santa Ana to welfare work is less than the average of other Pacific coast communities and that while the givers in amounts of less than $50 were doing as well as other cities, the percentage of larger gifts was quite small. In urging the citizens enjoying the wealth of the community to give more generously so that the social needs of Santa Ana might be adequately met, the Chest president called attention to the fact that the failure of the Chest this year would result in the dissolution of that body with the consequent series of eight to 10 separate drives each year instead of one.

The Chest leader expressed the hope that the campaign this year would be so conducted that nothing but the best of feeling would result in the attitude of the citizens of the community toward the Chest, as well as among the workers in general. He also suggested that an index of the amount being given by each subscriber to each of the organizations included by the Chest could be ascertained by dividing the total pledge by nine. William H. Spurgeon Jr., vice president of the Chest, and Clyde Spurgeon, campaign manager, also addressed the meeting, voicing an optimistic note for the coming campaign, basing the feeling they had on the confidence they felt in the citizens of the community to embrace this opportunity to press their human interest in their fellowmen and expressing their belief that there was not a person in the community who was not interested in one or more of the agencies participating in the Chest.

FAKES HOLDUP AND GETS AWAY WITHOUT PAYING FOR TAXI FROM LOS ANGELES

John J. Becker, taxi driver for the Red Top Cab company, of Los Angeles, lost a taxi fare of $10.50 here early this morning when a Santa Ana commuter casually walked out of the cab with his right hand in his coat pocket, making Becker believe he was being covered with a pistol, according to a report on file at the city police station.

The "holdup" occurred in the 900 block on North Broadway, the probable destination of the commuter, in the opinion of the police.

Becker never did see a gun, he reported, or was there any attempt to take any money away from him, he reported. The man just got out of the cab and started to pay, then decided not to.

The man is said to have darted across a vacant lot, leaving Becker to "hold the bag" for the taxi fare to Santa Ana.

B'NAI B'RITH PLANS GREAT GET-TOGETHER

Culminating months of planning on the part of the officers' conference, the representative organization of the 10 Southern California lodges of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, a mammoth B'nai B'rith night and get-together banquet will be held Sunday night, November 10 in the Elite cafe, 641 South Flower street, Los Angeles.

The lodges participating are those of Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Pedro, Huntington Park, San Bernardino, Santa Monica, San Diego, Hollywood, Long Beach and Santa Ana. Invitations already having been mailed to the entire membership.

With the meeting not only open to members, but to their families and friends, and with the members of the various women's auxiliaries particularly invited, it is anticipated that the capacity of the dining room will be taxed to accommodate the crowd.

President H. E. Press, of the conference, has announced a most extraordinary program, not only from an educational standpoint, but of entertainment as well.

As master of ceremonies, Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin, will preside. The guest of honor will be Grand President George M. Lipman, who will be called upon for a short speech. As the speaker of the evening, Grand Orator Judge Isadore M. Golden, of San Francisco, a past grand president of this district, is making a special trip to Los Angeles as the guest of the officers' conference.

The headliner on the entertainment feature will be Gus Edwards, now with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

The lodges will be grouped with banners of identification and a particular effort is being made by the various officers to get the greatest turnout from their lodges, the conference having offered a worthy prize to the winner.

In view of the limited seating capacity of the hall, members are urged to respond immediately to their invitations and make reservations with their local secretary.

NOTED WOMAN EVANGELIST IN SERVICES HERE

Opening this week and closing next week revival services in the Christian and Missionary Alliance chapel, on Cypress street, near Main, will afford Santa Anans the opportunity of hearing a woman evangelist who is pastor of one of the largest tabernacles in the United States.

Virginia Brandt Berg, pastor of the Alliance tabernacle, in Miami, Fla., an internationally known evangelist, who is considered by many as one of America's most outstanding woman speakers, will be in Santa Ana for two weeks. This is her only speaking appointment in this section, as she came to Los Angeles to visit her father and not to conduct religious meetings. Through the persuasion of the Rev. Mr. Chismen, superintendent of the Southern California district, she has consented to speak in the Santa Ana chapel before returning to her work in Florida.

Mrs. Berg is the daughter of one of the prominent leaders of the Christian church, Dr. John L. Brandt, whose name is in "Who's Who in America" as an author of several books, a lecturer and traveler. Having been reared in such environment, and herself a world traveler, and having enjoyed every advantage of training and culture, Virginia Brandt Berg comes to this city as one of the best platform speakers in her line. It is stated by those who have heard her that she has a most attractive personality, a deep message and an interesting manner of presentation.

Tonight Mrs. Berg will tell her life story. This, it is said, is one of the most remarkable narratives on record. After five years of invalidism, in bed and in wheelchair, resulting from a broken back which paralyzed her from her waist down and which eventually caused every organ in her body to become diseased, she was restored in answer to her husband's prayers.

FOREST BOARD VISITS COUNTY ON TOMORROW

Accompanied by representatives of the federal state and county forestry departments, the state board of forestry will visit Orange county tomorrow on its tour of the watersheds of Southern California.

The party will be met in La Habra at 9:30 a. m., by a group of Orange county men, headed by the Willard Smith, chairman of the board of supervisors, and then conducted on a tour through a portion of Orange county.

The itinerary calls for a brief stop at the Hewes ranch, where the party will be served with oranges. From there the touring party will visit Irvine park and continue to Riverside over the Black Star canyon road. Inspection of the firebreaks constructed in the canyon through the joint action of the county and state will be one of the principal features of the board's visit to Orange county. Lunch will be served in the Mission Inn, in Riverside.

The board came south at the invitation of D. Eymann Huff, owner of Hewes ranch, and H. S. Gilman, of San Diego, both being members of the board. Huff is absent and will not be here to accompany the board. He was believed to be en route today for Portland, Ore., where he has entered his Jersey herd in a livestock exhibition.

Guest, including "Dr. John's Picture Show" and "A Boy's Hopes for the Future," together with "My New Brother" and the song, "Baby's Boat" by Gaynor.

Anticipated events of the immediate future in B. and P. W. affairs include the meeting of the book review section, Friday night with Mrs. Theo A. Winkler, 207 East Ninth street, where the hostesses will give members the privilege of seeing the many beautiful things which Mr. Winkler brought home from his recent trip through the Orient and the South seas. The nature study section, which will meet during the following week, will have acacias as its study theme.

Next Monday the noon luncheon at the Inn will be dispensed with and instead the meeting will be an evening card party in the Mahul Rockwell School of Dancing, 117 1-2 East Fourth street. Members may invite any woman friends they wish.

JANUARY 1 TO BE DEADLINE ON COMPENSATION

A special invitation was issued today by Santa Ana post, No. 131, American Legion, to all World war veterans in Santa Ana and vicinity to attend a meeting of the post on Thursday night, when special speakers will present features of various services and aims of the Legion in assisting men who were in the service.

Bob Walker, chairman of the membership campaign committee, asserted his belief that there are scores of ex-service men in this vicinity who are not familiar with the aims and objects of the Legion and the meeting Thursday night has been arranged to present details to such men.

Pointing out that January 1 is the "dead line" for application by ex-service men for adjusted compensation, Walker today urged immediate attention by veterans who have so far failed to give attention to this important matter. It is possible that some of the details of the compensation act will be presented at the meeting. It is understood that there is possibility of congress passing a bill by which adjusted compensation certificates may be turned into cash at the option of the holder.

It is expected that reports will be made on the result of the membership campaign. Should the post reach its goal of 1000 members, it will be the fifth largest in the state, Walker said.

BEANS BRINGING 12 CENTS PER POUND. REPORT

The bean crop in Orange county this year, while reported to be 10 per cent smaller than last year, is expected to result in one of the most prosperous years experienced by growers, according to prominent men in the industry. The bean crop, while far from being the largest produced in the county, is of superior quality and is commanding more money on the market.

Inquiry today revealed that independent buyers are paying 12 cents per pound, which is three cents more than they paid last year. The 12-cent price has prevailed for several weeks. Associations are sending out checks for five cents per pound to their members, but all indications are that the average price paid the growers this season through the associations will reach the 12-cent figure.

William C. Jerome, formerly identified with the California Bean Growers' association, and an authority on beans in Orange county, is not inclined to believe that the short crop here this year has caused the prices to reach the advanced figure, but leaned toward the opinion that the beans of the 1929 crop were commanding better prices because of better quality. He attributed the 20 per cent crop shortage as probably due to the fact that the dry land farmers did not plant as much beans this year and that bean growing with the aid of irrigation had slackened considerably in this county. It is reported that the crops east of the Santa Ana river this year are larger than those of last year, with the bulk of the shortage for the county falling in the district east of the river.

REPORTS ON FLOOD CONTROL EXPECTED TO BRING LIVELY SESSION OF CHAMBERS BODY

Disposition of minority and majority reports on flood control by a special committee is expected to be made at the meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county, to be held next Tuesday in the Bear cafe in Huntington Beach, it was intimated today by George Masland, secretary of the organization. The reports were filed at the meeting last month in Yorba Linda and at the same time notice was given that a resolution would be introduced at the next meeting calling upon the board of supervisors to start another investigation of dam sites on the Santa Ana river. The notice was given by V. D. Johnson, of Orange.

The resolution and the two reports, if the latter are taken from the table, should offer the background for a lively session, in the opinion of the secretary.

Appointment by President Lotus Loudon of a committee to urge the board of supervisors to purchase the ground occupied by the Orange County fair and a report by the committee on state parks are other important matters that will come before the county booster body.

MORE THAN 70 ATTEND SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET

More than 70 persons attended the dinner meeting of the Sunday School Workers' conference of the First Presbyterian church last night. Walter D. Kring, director of religious education, was in charge of the program.

One particularly attractive feature of the program was the announcement that Mrs. J. W. Flag had celebrated her 21st consecutive year of service as secretary of the Mateer Bible class. She was the honor guest last night and gave an impressive talk on the growth of the church and the Sunday school since her first work in the congregation.

"Methods of Teaching" was the subject of the address given by Kring, who gave an informative 30-minute lecture on applied plans and methods.

Following his talk the meeting broke up into groups and met in various rooms to discuss the problems of the various departments. M. B. Youel, general superintendent of the Sunday school, presided.

Other superintendents who headed discussions were Miss Stella Groff, Sunbeam department; Mrs. J. B. Bichan, beginners' department; Mrs. R. J. Brown, primary department; Mrs. D. A. Bear, junior department; Mrs. M. B. Youel, junior high department; Chester Hawk, high school department; Walter Kring, young people's department, and Herbert Rankin, adult department.

WOMAN BELIEVES BROTHER IN S. A.

Search is being made in Santa Ana for Harry C. Price, who is wanted by his sister, Mrs. Arthur Batts, of Mound Valley, Kas.

Chief of Police Rogers today received a letter from Mrs. Batts asking that her brother be located if possible. She wrote that she had not seen him for 25 years but that in 1904 he was working in Santa Ana.

His mother and father have died in the meantime and the sister is anxious to communicate with him.

Fund With Which To Retain Beach Land Established

A trust fund of $500, to be used for the purpose of retaining for the benefit of the public any portion of beach frontage in or about Laguna Beach which is public property but is being encroached upon by private individuals or corporations, was left by the late Elmer E. Jahraus, who died on September 24, it was revealed today when his will was filed for probate.

The entire estate is valued at approximately $25,000, according to the petition for admitting the will, which was filed by Josephine Richard Jahraus and Pauline Christine Smith, both of Laguna Beach.

Real property valued at about $20,000 and personal property valued at approximately $2500 were mentioned.

BARR ATTENDS Y. MEET IN CHICAGO

O. H. Barr, past president of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A., was in Chicago today, attending sessions of the national Y. M. C. A. council, of which he is a member.

The council was organized in 1924, when the international committee, founded in 1854 by the United States and Canada, turned over its active responsibilities to the respective national councils.

The national council's program among boys and young men in the United States, its service in 30 other lands and its budget of $2,500,000 will come under review of the council in its present conference, it was pointed out here today by Ralph Smalley, executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

JUDGMENT UPHELD BY HIGHER COURT

Priscilla Dean, of Hollywood, today had won her second victory in a $61,000 damage suit against her father who originated in Orange county.

After emerging from the trial of the case here with the judgment in her favor, Miss Dean scored again when the plaintiffs, Charles C. Ross and Sarah E. Ross, appealed from the verdict. For the appellate court dismissed the appeal, it was learned today.

At the trial here before former Superior Judge E. J. Marks, the plaintiffs sought to collect damages on the ground that Miss Dean's car struck their machine at Broadway and Los Angeles streets, in Anaheim, while it was standing still at a boulevard stop. The accident occurred on Nov. 29, 1927.

RACE QUESTION BEFORE BOARD IN PLACENTIA

PLACENTIA, Oct. 22.—The subject of allowing Filipinos to come into Placentia and rent next to houses in which Caucasians are living was discussed at the meeting of the Placentia city council last evening. Protests are being made by property owners against this practice and in the hopes of combating it, race restrictions in the property deeds are being looked up. A case was cited where authorities in Anaheim forced Filipinos to vacate property and efforts are to be made to find out how they did it.

Other matters brought up for discussion were the advisability of putting some kind of surfacing on the fill in Santa Fe street before the winter rains set in; all day parking, which interferes with business, according to the complaints of some of the merchants; the advisability of collecting a dog tax; fire equipment and the location of new hydrants; also the question of fire and police officers using sirens and red lights on privately owned vehicles. The new law on this matter was discussed and explained by City Attorney Albert Launer, who told how some of the cities are acting in the matter.

Engineer George Bates reported on the lights, stating that the Edison company will check up on the extra amount of current heavier lamps will use, and advising that the heavier ones be put in. A motion was made that a Ford truck be purchased for the use of the street department, provided it could be bought on terms to suit the city.

Lerian, Catcher For Phillies, Is Killed In Crash

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 22.—Walter Lerian, catcher for the Philadelphia National league baseball team, died at the Franklin Square hospital here early today from injuries sustained when he was struck by a truck last night.

Lerian was walking along a sidewalk when the truck, sideswiped by a smaller car, crashed over the curb and drove him into a brick wall. He was taken to the hospital, suffering from several fractures, bruises and major lacerations. He died soon after midnight.

Lerian was highly popular in this, his home city, and when physicians announced, early in the evening, that blood transfusions might save his life, nearly a score of men volunteered. He never regained consciousness, however.

Lerian was 26 years old, and went to the Phillies in 1928 from the New Haven club of the Eastern league.

CUE CHAMP BEHIND

EVERETT, Wash., Oct. 22.—With an unfinished run of 45, Conrad Wallgren, Everett challenger, took the lead over Percy Collins, Chicago, national amateur 18.2 ballline billiard champion, in their title match here last night.

A man just came in and said: Well, here you are! I've looked all over for you and here I find you upstairs. Now, ain't it funny, he would go to so much trouble? "There is a reason."

PAST GOVERNOR LIONS SPEAKER IN COSTA MESA

COSTA MESA, Oct. 22.—Costa Mesa Lions were hosts to the county council last night. The meeting was called to order by E. M. Sundquist of the Santa Ana Lions club. The session was held in the Friday afternoon clubhouse on Newport road.

Charles Dunn, president of the Costa Mesa club, took charge of the meeting during the dinner period. Dinner was served to 40 Lions and friends by the women of the Friday Afternoon club.

After dinner the meeting was given back to Mr. Sundquist, who introduced as the speaker of the evening a past district governor, William Wells, of Riverside, who spoke on "What Next," weaving into his talk the life and doings of one whom he termed as the greatest living scientist today, Thomas A. Edison. Last night's meeting marked the 50th anniversary of the perfecting of the first incandescent light by Mr. Edison and is being celebrated as the Golden Jubilee of Lights throughout the country. Mr. Wells also stated that during his lifetime, and he is now in his 82nd year, Mr. Edison has made some 11,126 inventions.

Following Mr. Wells' talk the business matters of the meeting were brought up, the most important of the subjects being finances with its relations to Lions clubs. At this point Dr. E. H. Rowland read a report on a council meeting recently held in Ventura, after which Mr. Wells introduced and explained the budget system of handling the finances of the clubs, which was discussed by the members of all clubs present.

The resignation of Earl Patterson as secretary of the Costa Mesa club was read and laid on the table.

Andy Anderson entertained at the piano. Alvin Block, of the Costa Mesa club, who with his family has been touring the east for several weeks, was welcomed back to the local club.

The following clubs were represented at the council: Orange, Santa Ana, Garden Grove, Brea, Costa Mesa, Laguna Beach, Anaheim and Fullerton.

The council adjourned to hold their next council meeting in Fullerton.

After roll call and a short drill by the assistant scout master, the boys were marched into the social hall of the Community Methodist church, the sponsors of the troop, where the dinner, which was prepared by the scout mother, Mrs. Emil Myrelin, was served by her helpers, Miss Lila Allen and Margaret Wilcutt.

DEEP OIL WELL IN H. B. FIELD AT 6050 FEET

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 22.—The Invader is drilling below 6050 feet at the corner of Westminister and Garfield streets. There is no oil or gas formation showing and the crew is drilling ahead as rapidly as possible. Oil men say it looks like the Invader is to be a real deep test as no talk of quitting is being heard from company sources.

Richfield is drilling ahead on the Paige No. 1 on Westminster avenue near Garfield, the depth being about 4150. This well will be put on production somewhere above 5000 feet if possible.

The Featherstone well on the east side in the Newland and Borchard lease has hooked its fish out of the hole and is drilling again, it is reported, working one shift a day but making fairly good progress below 3900 feet.

DEATH OF FIVE ACCIDENTAL IS JURY VERDICT

FULLERTON, Oct. 22.—That the death of Benjuro Serizawa, Japanese, and his wife and three small children, who were killed when their car was struck by a Santa Fe passenger train Saturday evening northwest of Fullerton, was accidental, was the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon in the Seale funeral parlors.

Several witnesses testified at the inquest but no reason could be found for Serizawa to drive onto the tracks in the path of an oncoming train since the tracks are visible for a considerable distance from the crossing.

Funeral services for the family were to be held this afternoon at the Japanese temple in Los Angeles, with the J. E. Seale funeral directors in charge. The bodies will be cremated.

NOTED QUARTET ON EVEREADY PROGRAM

Russia's inestimable contribution to music will be depicted by the most famous of all Russian musical organizations over the Eveready hour, at 8 p. m., today, coast time, via the NBC and KFI.

Recently returned to the United States after repeated ovations in European capitals, the Kedroff Quartet will be the guest artists of Eveready Hour.

Described by Feodor Chaliapin, the greatest Russian basso, as "a musical miracle," the Kedroffs appear to have justified this unique praise. Before their origin quartet singing was regarded by some critics as not one of the highest forms of musical expression because of the difficulty of perfecting it. Long years of devotional work was spent by the Kedroffs before they appeared before the public. Their sole aim in these years of practice was to attain the technical perfection of a group of stringed instruments such as the internationally famous Flonaley quartet.

More and More Colds Treated Externally

Growing Demand for Vicks Vapo-Rub Compels Another Increase in Famous Slogan

A generation ago, when Vicks Vapo-Rub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today more and more colds are treated externally, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

As a result, the demand for Vicks has increased so rapidly that it is again necessary to change its famous slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 million Jars Used Yearly," this famous slogan was raised to "21 million" a short time ago. Once more the figure has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 25 Million Jars Used Yearly" in the United States alone.

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because there's nothing to swallow and, of course, nothing to upset delicate stomachs, as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, this modern vaporizing ointment acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster, and at the same time it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages.

Year after year the popularity of Vicks has spread all over the world until it is now the family standby for all colds—adults as well as children—in more than 60 countries.—Adv.

What is this new and astonishing Agmel?

Why has it this effect upon kidney deficiencies, high blood pressure, indigestion?

AGMEL is astonishing both in what it is and what it does. Agmel is a great health food, a valuable tonic in kidney deficiencies, high blood pressure, indigestion and glycosuria. It is an extraordinary discovery, a real gift of nature—an imported vegetable milk from Mexico. In its native country this plant sap is called "aguamiel." It comes from the famous maguey plant and there is nothing else in the world like it. Fresh aguamiel has been used for centuries in Mexico. Now this pure sap has been concentrated for export, and the name has been shortened to Agmel. Everybody can now have Agmel. This is fortunate for those men and women just entering middle life and for those of all ages who are being warned of danger arising at night, backache, high blood pressure and other symptoms brought on by modern ways of eating and living. Imported by The Agmel Corporation, New York and Mexico, D. F.

Kidneys 100% Better "I couldn't eat, had dizzy spells, got up many times every night. Then took Agmel faithfully for a month and everything was changed. My blood pressure was 60 degrees lower, appetite returned and kidneys were 100% better."—Mrs. J. W. Shane, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Cow is off the Track! AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Railroads have safely passed those danger signals of prejudice which caused folks to look upon them with fear. Holding aloft the semaphore of progress AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE cleared the track and, today, millions travel in ease and security.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

Tombstone the Ghost Town Comes to Life Once More

Apache Chief Geronimo. . . . Old Tombstoners, remembering his cruelties, promise to destroy any monument erected to his memory by Indian sentimentalists.

The Can Can Restaurant Will Reopen,
Bird Cage Theater Will Light Up
And Tough Nut Street Will Again See
Feuds, Hold-Ups and Indian Raids
In Celebration of 50 Years' History
In a Once Rich-and-Roarin' Silver City.

Regarding the Bird Cage is now going on in Tombstone . . . to restore this famous theater of the old west to what it was when Eddie Foy and other noted variety actors played there.

By OREN ARNOLD

TOMBSTONE, Arizona, once the "livest" city between the Mississippi and the Pacific, is planning to live again. Its citizenship, now dwindled to about 1500, is preparing to revive for a week that extremely colorful period—around 1881—when every-day life was a huddle of what we now call the Wild West. When the noise recedes and the gun smoke clears away, the world at large will know emphatically that Tombstone is 50 years old. For it is to be a birthday celebration.

For a week the present will fade and the past reappear like a picture. Tombstone's streets will see lumber wagons coming in from the Chiricahua mountains; will clank and clatter with the noise of ore trains and mule skinnners, of whips and pistols.

Arcaded sidewalks again will be crowded. Roistering throngs will be heard in laughter from brilliantly lighted bars, laughter measured by the click of faro and the rattle of roulette wheels.

Guests may see in vivid reincarnation many of the great names of yesterday, the old buccaneers who have shot and galloped through innumerable pages of history and fiction. For Tombstone as a lustrous infant is to rise and live again.

From the start the town has been steeped in adventure of the most dramatic kind. To those who know its story, the very mention of the town's name brings to mind a rapid panorama of fighting and death, of gaiety and pleasure in wild abandon, of murderous Indians, of stagecoach robberies, of cowboy episodes, of honky tonks and dance halls, of gun battles, of all the tense excitement only a booming frontier mining town can know. Over all the colorful western towns in fact or fiction, Tombstone boasts the embodiment of everything interesting in the firm-chinned era just past.

Standing today as a drab, dust-covered collection of houses sprawled along a transcontinental highway, Tombstone is so unattractive as to make unknown tourists wonder why it is there.

But Tombstone's glory is in its past, and that glory will be seen this fall again when time is jerked abruptly backward half a century.

All of Arizona will co-operate in the celebration, because the state is proud of Tombstone. Once it was the metropolis, with a population of 15,000, when the second city had only 1800 or so. It gave to the state millions of dollars in silver ore, and billions in romantic history.

ED SCHIEFFELIN will be at the party, not in person, for Ed died years ago in Oregon, a lonely millionaire, but by proxy because he is the father of Tombstone.

Ed was the gay dog who drifted west from Pennsylvania, discontent with life on a farm, and turned up in the 1870's in southern Arizona, a swanky, handsome fellow afraid of nothing under the sun. Romance lived within him, romance and the spirit to go and do, to search and see, to find and take. Exactly the type who would have named Tombstone.

Ed was about to start prospecting alone into the hills of southern Arizona one day when a friend questioned him.

"Where you going, Ed?"

"Over there. Lookin' for stones," he replied, and mounted his mule to ride away. But as that country was infested by murderous Apaches, his friend gave him a parting fling: "The stone you'll find'll be your tombstone."

That same day two skeletons, bleached on a hillside with a pile of nuggets between them, led Ed to trace a rich silver float to a ledge which he promptly christened Tombstone; and filed claim on the discovery under that name.

That was in 1879—50 years ago. Near the spot three years later stood a roaring hellorado, the town Arizona is preparing to re-create this fall.

" . . . and another Red Skin bit the dust" . . . a glimpse of a famed phase of Tombstone's past that will be re-enacted at the golden anniversary celebration.

girls, in the old Bird Cage. Lotta Crabtree graced its stage. They are two of several who once were great names in the amusement world, and whose memory has scarcely begun to fade.

The Bird Cage—so named because it was very small and intimate—will be open again, its bar in front will be tended by flabby, aproned barkeeps as of yore, while gentlemen and cowboys and miners and adventurers dressed in the fashion of 1881 lean with one foot on the bar rail, to drink and make merry.

No note of modernity will be allowed to creep in. The residents of Tombstone will see to it. Already they are growing whiskers, started back in July, as lush and luxurious as any Ed Schieffelin ever wore.

Already the newer buildings on Tough Nut street and other principal thoroughfares of Tombstone have been hidden behind false fronts, to make them "in character" with the thriving, seething municipality of the '80's. Hitching rails have reappeared, and horses will be tied there. Motor cars will be taboo, their honks replaced by pistol shots as the Clantons and the Earps again fight their murderous duel in front of the assay office and the O. K. corral.

Over in Schieffelin Hall, where more dignified stock companies presented drama of the period, where Theodore Roberts once acted, and Frederick Warde and Charles B. Hanford and others of their day, the big curtain will go up at regular intervals, and the same shows will be staged.

Modern merchandise will be removed from the show windows of the stores. Modern signboards will be replaced with the original ones or their counterparts. Long-skirted women will stroll up the board sidewalks—covering modern cement—and all the men will be ornamented with forbidding pistols or knives.

The Can Can Cafe . . . where two-gun men could pick a pea off a knife across the room . . . where there were many ladies who were known as Lou.

"Apache May" hid in a flour sack until the shooting was over.

Ed Schieffelin. . . . "The stone you'll find will be your tombstone," was the reply.

A pile of silver nuggets between two bleached skeletons . . . led Prospector Ed Schieffelin to found roarin' Tombstone on the spot.

changed after half a century. For faithful restoration of this hell-roaring mining camp, that sprung up like a mushroom when Ed began to spread news of his big silver mine, is the aim of Arizonans who are spending thousands of dollars to make the celebration an artistic event.

THE old Tombstone stagecoach, too, was held up with surprising regularity in the period when life in the west was raw. This stage carried passengers, and frequently money chests to and from the mines. Hold-ups were so frequent, and so often by the same robbers, that drivers said they could recognize individuals among the masked outlaws by their voices saying "Hands up, and keep 'em thar!"

The old coach will be seen again this year, rolling into town with its crowd of 19th century passengers, welcomed down Tough Nut street with shouts and shots from the 19th century citizenry.

Doubtless, too, the driver frequently will pull to an abrupt halt in front of Sheriff Behan, and from his high seat tell with vivid gesticulation and excited voice of being stuck up again on Skeleton Bend. That—the stark reality of the old days—will be the theme of Tombstone's birthday celebration.

The Indian's contribution to Tombstone's romance will not be overlooked in the birthday party. It couldn't be, because the Indian was ever a prominent figure, a danger constantly faced by every settler outside the protection of town or camp.

The Tombstone country was terrorized for a time by the redoubtable Geronimo, foremost leader of the Apaches, whose tribal enmity for white men has not yet ceased. Geronimo is the great god of Indian devilry in the southwest. Fantastic stories and legends about him can scarcely be exaggerated, so active was he 50 years ago.

Modern students find him a fascinating subject. Modern sentimentalists, only vaguely familiar with his bloody career, attempt to idolize him at times. One group attempted to raise a monument to him, as champion of the Red Man's cause. But some of the white old-timers dared anybody to try it and promised immediate destruction of any monument raised.

Geronimo hated the whites, not entirely without reason, possibly, and he plundered and killed for sheer love of it until he was almost too old to ride, showing rare cunning in eluding capture or in escaping if trapped.

WOVEN into the story of Tombstone is a tragic chapter which has become a classic in the western country. A party of braves had broken away from a reservation at San Carlos, and had left a black trail of burned home and death as they moved southward, crossing the international line into Mexico just south of Tombstone.

A troop of the Seventh Cavalry was in pursuit. Their forces were increased by old settlers, among them John Slaughter, Tombstone's famed scout and guide.

Working like a hound on the scent of the braves, Slaughter located them encamped on a bench on a high mountain. As the next day was breaking, with the Indian camp still silent in sleep, the noise of army carabines sounded a terrible reveille. Bucks and squaws came tumbling from little groups of wickiups in the clearing. Those who were not shot down vanished in the hills. Pursuit was useless, so the soldiers returned to burn the village.

John Slaughter entered one crude dwelling and with his rifle poked a sack of flour. The sack moved, and a black-haired baby girl, undisturbed by the shooting, awoke to stare at him.

Before Slaughter picked her up a rifle cracked from up on the mountain side. Two soldiers promptly returned the fire, and went up to find a lone Apache buck lying dead behind a rock. He had slipped back to do what he could for his daughter.

Slaughter took her home to his cattle ranch near Tombstone and adopted her. She grew fast, proved to be exceptionally bright in adopting the ways of civilization, once threatened in a fit of temper to kill her adopted mother, and herself was accidentally burned to death while still a child. She became known as Apache May, and later as "Patchy."

She still lives in the memory of old Tombstone citizens. Near the heart of Tombstone is a huge cone-shaped monument, made of rocks gathered from the vicinity, and modeled after the markers prospectors used to stake out mining claims. Under it is the grave of Ed Schieffelin, on the exact spot where he had camped when he made his first discovery.

Under this monument, modeled after the markers used by prospectors in staking out claims, is buried Founder Ed Schieffelin . . . on the spot where he first camped when he struck silver.

DOWN in the front office of the Tombstone Epitaph, energetic newspaper of this extraordinary town, men and women will gather from time to time to chat with the editor as they used to do, or mayhap to cuss him and demand that he be less vitriolic in the expression of his opinions of them.

Incidentally, the very first editor and founder of the Epitaph, and the first mayor of Tombstone, John P. Clumb, is one of the few old-timers who will attend the celebration in person. Not many of the major characters of Tombstone's heyday are still living, but some of them are, and will be at the party.

The Epitaph is still published in the original Epitaph building. The paper was named at a meeting in the Can Can Restaurant by Charles B. Hanford, who pointed out that Tombstone's newspaper should have an appropriate name.

If Ed Schieffelin or Doc Holliday or Wyatt Earp should, by the grace of God, suddenly return to their old haunts, they would marvel, doubtless, at finding the world so un-

Willard Honor Society

Members of the Willard Honor Society met with Mrs. Edith Thatcher last Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of electing officers for this term and discussing the privileges due them for their records. The following officers were elected to serve the club: President, Robert Wimbush; vice president, George Fluke; secretary-treasurer, Elizabeth Woods; reported, Dorothy Wykes. Other members include Robert Tannenbaum, Sammy Tucker (gold pin student), Mildred Franke, Marian Hawk, Beatrice Hinkle, Wilma Rice, Kathryn Sexton, Harold Yonel, Claude Owens, William Cornutt, John Ramirez, Elizabeth Sturtevant, Katherine Fitzpatrick, Louise Sexton, Annie Tucker, Mary Wallace, Dorothy McMillan, Philip Smith.

Members of the honor roll which stands for the same scholastic records on the basis of points but have made the record for the first time, include the following: Corinne Linger, Evelyn Brannan, Dorothy Guthrie, Margaret Sawyer, Hubert Dale, Mary Jane Zink, Ruth Plets, Waldo Smith.

The honor society students are granted the following privileges: No absence or tardy slips are required by the teachers as long as the privilege is not abused. The first Friday of each month, during the last part of the sixth period, Honor society members will be excused. There will be one holiday given each semester for the purpose of an excursion of some particular interest for the entire group. Meetings will be held every two weeks during the last part of the sixth period on Wednesdays.

Willard Welfare Club
The Willard Welfare club held an interesting and humorous meeting last Wednesday noon when each member responded to the roll call with a joke. The members were next given slips of paper on which had to be carried out by the ones holding the slips. This proved quite entertaining. Dorothy Spicer, president, presided. The secretary's report was given by Alma Garthe and the treasurer's report by Marjorie Lauderbach.

Give Fine Program
The students of the low 9 sections gave a splendid assembly program last Friday morning. Miss Dorothy Broadway was largely responsible for the varied program which had taken much time to prepare. She was assisted by Miss Veda Ball, Miss Ruth Mueller and Miss Elfrida Biglin, all low 9th grade home-room teachers.

The first number on the program was a clown dance which was unique and entertaining. Ten girls took part dressed in clown suits of black and white, also black and white masks. They were Nadine Holbrook, Vivian Wood, Doris Rohrbacher, Priscilla Sherman, Dorothy Wykes, Dorothy Spicer, Marian Hawk, Harriet Chapin, Marjorie Lindsay and Mildred Franke. A second part of the clown performance was a tumbling act by Mildred Franke and Marjorie Lauderbach, which was done most skillfully.

Josephine Madrid in hobo garb next favored the audience with two of her humorous monologues, "A Little Country Town" and "Beggar." The Dutch dance was artistically given in Dutch costumes by Harriet Chapin, Louise Holbrook, Vivian Wood, Dorothy Spicer, Marjorie Lindsay and Marian Hawk. This dance was directed by Mrs. Z. Dixon of the physical education department, assisted by Miss Dorothy Broadway. Betty Barkman delighted the students with a broadcasting number in which she took off most humorously the story of Little Red Riding Hood. "The Romance of Soap-pillo," a comic skit, made a big hit. Those taking part were "Soap-pillo," by Elmer Curry; "Sweepup," by Weston Sprague; "Sapillo," by De-mont Galbraith; "Spaghetti," by Charles Downie, and "Rutabaga," by Harold Woodard. This farce was directed by Miss Veda Ball.

The girls' chorus, composed of nearly all the girls of the low 9th grade, appeared in a delightful number consisting of dancing and singing. They were costumed in beautiful net dresses of pastel tints. This number was directed by Miss Broadway also. Marjorie Lauderbach concluded the program with a humorous reading entitled "Auto-Intoxication," which was entertaining and well given.

Glasses Enjoy Privileges
Mrs. Thomas of the New York Beauty school gave a very interesting talk on Beauty Culture to Mrs. Maurine Scott's and Mrs. Lura Livenspire's classes last week. She told of the qualifications necessary for this vocation and the time needed for the training. The girls asked questions concerning the subject which were gladly answered by Mrs. Thomas.

Mrs. Livenspire's girls' vocation class also enjoyed a trip to the Santa Ana telephone office where they were shown all the departments and told about the work. This gave the girls of the class a much better idea of the qualifications and experience needed to be an efficient employee in this sort of work.

Boys' Service Club
The Boys' Service club was called to order by the president, Howard Rash, following luncheon. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Robert Wimbush, secretary. Following the discussion of old and new business the president stated that the speeches announced the last meeting of the club would be continued. Each boy reported on "What I Did on My Vacation."

Following these talks, Miss Esther Jean Davis gave an interesting talk on music appreciation.

The 5th section under the direction of Miss Dorothy Smith, held a picnic at Irvine park last Thursday afternoon. Several parents chaperoned the group. An interesting program was planned by Vincent Geren, chairman of the committee, Joe Knox and Howard Rash. The refreshments committee included Betty Rowland, chairman, Carol House, Robert Tannenbaum and Sammy Tucker. All the members of the class and guests enjoyed a fine picnic.

We are going to have a new school soon. They have made the skeleton of all the rooms of the first story. They are going to make it two stories high. It is going to have an auditorium with 500 seats.

Our school had an average of 72 per cent of its pupils putting money in the bank this week. Miss Joplin in the kindergarten got the savings pennant. We are trying to get the big pennant to put in our new school.

One day at Fremont school, there passed a truck that delivers paper towels. The man that was driving the truck did not see a hole that the water used to come out of. The truck fell in. He stayed there and sent for help of the same company. Then about half an hour later the other truck came and took him out of the hole.

Arthur Saldaña.
The Fremont school won a pennant last year in putting money in the bank. We have kept it so that the bank man said we could keep it. We are very glad we are to keep it.

We now have a coach for basketball. Her name is Miss Irene Whistler. She is going to teach us on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, coming at 12 o'clock. She comes from the junior college. She is very glad to come and teach us to play nine court basketball so we can have a team and play with other schools in Santa Ana.

Hallow'en is almost here and all the rooms in McKinley school are very prettily decorated.

On the windows are little cats or owls and all around the room are funny pumpkins and pictures. If you notice every thing you are sure to laugh quite loudly. I'm very sorry to say that other classes will wonder what that peculiar sound is, coming from down stairs but just the same I like Hallow'en, don't you?

So far Miss Hasty's class, the Low 5 and High 5 are ahead. They have 19 members.

Achievement
Spurgeon school children took a new Stanford achievement test. It had ten different parts. It was for the fourth to the ninth grades.
Lyman Ellis.

Letters
In writing, the pupils of the fifth and sixth grades are writing letters to each other and answering them. In the letter we describe somebody in the room. Then we write back whom we think it is. This is a very good idea as it is practicing letter-writing and writing both.
Gladys London.

Laguna Art Exhibit
This week the children in the L6 and H6 wrote essays on the Laguna art exhibit which was shown here. There were many children that wrote on it but there were only five whose essays were chosen to be sent in. The contestants from Spurgeon were Virginia Urthard, Ruth Lee, Evelyn Mustol, Carl Lee, Aubrey and Clyde Files.

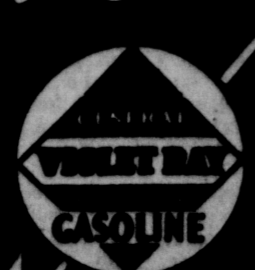

The Easel
In Mrs. Wolff's room we have an easel. The boy or girl in the room that is best gets to work on the easel. Jack Krisher has made a football man on it. I hope my work in art will be good so that I can work on the easel.

Hard Work
Carl Lee Aubrey and Lyle Boyle of the high sixth grade are making a microphone out of a coffee can, a broom stick, and other materials, for the current events. Lyman Ellis is making one too. I think I would give up before I finished.

Soccer Game

CAGLE HAS OLD ROMEO LEMON SCORE TO EVEN CHARLEY COBB WITH STANFORD CLASH TONIGHT

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The scene is the Stanford dressing room under the Stanford stadium after the Stanford-Army football game last fall.

A smallish-looking cadet edged his way into the room.

"Where's that No. 20?" he asked.

"Who are you?" Pop Warner boomed out.

"I'm Cagle and I'm here to tell that No. 20 he's played a football game today."

Pop Warner straightened up with surprise and looked at Chris Cagle for a moment and then replied:

"Well, you're not so bad yourself."

"Well, I wasn't so good today. That No. 20 had me by the heels all the time."

"Just the same, I'm plenty glad that I've seen the last of you, young man. I held my breath every time you got your hands on the ball."

"Oh, but Mr. Warner, you haven't seen the last of me. You'll get to look me over once more when we come out there next fall."

"Pop" sank back into his chair and Cagle departed.

When Army plays Stanford at Palo Alto December 25, Cagle will be the hardest man on the field to halt. Only once has Cagle been stopped cold. Stanford did it last fall, thanks to the bruising tackling of Bob Sims (No. 20), Stanford halfback, who smothered every effort of Cagle's to get away.

Old Score to Settle
Sims is gone, but Army still has Cagle and Cagle has an old score to settle with Stanford.

Harvard halted Cagle for the first half Saturday at Cambridge. Just when the Harvard players were getting ready to pat themselves on the back, Cagle broke away for two touchdowns and it took a 50-yard pass in the closing minutes of play to give the Crimson a 20-20 tie.

Sooner or later, Cagle always gets away. He runs with tremendous speed and can keep his feet with tacklers lunging at him from all angles. He has a knack of throwing his body away from outstretched arms.

"Red" Weighs 167
Cagle is not big, weighing only 167 and measuring 5-10. He looks small on the football field by comparison with his bigger teammates. He is 24, and is captain of the team this season.

He hails from Merryville, La., and attended Southwestern Louisiana Institute before he entered West Point.

He is a triple-threat man, but runs better than he passes or kicks. He is not an outstanding

How good, if any, is Romeo Lemon?

This question should be answered by 11 o'clock tonight when the rangy Fullerton welterweight meets Charley Cobb, a tough one for anybody, at the Orange County Athletic club.

Lemon and Cobb are scheduled for eight rounds of main-eventing. The odds favored Cobb today but there appeared a beautiful chance for an upset. Lemon has never trained harder for a match than he has for this one which is by far the most important of his brief career.

Cobb has never lost a bout in Santa Ana although Jimmie Rivers held him to a draw early last month. Lemon's only defeat here was by Marty Mack in Lemon's first professional fight.

Promoter-Matchmaker H. T. Foust thinks his semi-final may steal the show. It sends Young Peter Jackson, sensational Los Angeles colored lightweight, against the unbeaten Louis Silvia of San Diego, a stablemate of Cobb. They fought a great draw here recently.

A six-round special between Eddie Benson and Joe Robinson heads the preliminaries. Two four-rounders open the program.

Shikat Wins When Mat Tackle Fails

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The "flying tackle," made famous by Gus Sonnenberg, gave Richard Shikat, recognized by the New York and Pennsylvania athletic commissions as the heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, a victory over Vanka Zelesniak of Russia in a championship bout here last night.

The victory came after 22 minutes of wrestling when Shikat sidestepped the Russian's attempt at a tackle and allowed his opponent to sail through the ropes and hit his head on the floor.

Kicker. He has a bad habit of grounding passes when he's bottled up behind the line of scrimmage. His passes, however, are accurate and flung with the speed of a baseball.

TROY-CARD TUSSLE IS 'TOSS-UP' Saints To Play Champions Saturday

OLIVER'S TEAM RETURNS HOME FOR NEXT TILT

Those travelworn Saints of Santa Ana high school return home this week to begin their uphill struggle for the football championship of the Coast Preparatory league. With the Long Beach thing just a bad memory, Coach "Tex" Oliver's squad began feverish preparations today for its game on Poly field Saturday afternoon with the Alhambra Moors, Southern California champions last year.

Incidentally, the Saints will have an "at-home" schedule the balance of the season.

After Alhambra they draw a much-needed bye on account of the California-U. S. C. game of November 2. They are tentatively scheduled to play one of the strong Orange league outfits, probably "Shorty" Smith's Brea-Olinda, November 9. Then come two conference opponents, Glendale November 19 and San Diego November 26, both at Poly field.

Oliver Disappointed
The outcome of the Long Beach game was a bitter disappointment but not a great surprise to Coach Oliver. He and Coach Bill Foote, who scouted the Jackrabbits for Oliver, were the only ones who realized the Long Beach strength. They said it was going to be one of the toughest games of the season but nobody, including their players, believed them. The great victory over Pasadena was too plainly indelible in their minds.

Oliver should not have any trouble keying up his men for Alhambra after what happened Saturday and what occurred along in November of 1924 when the Moors buried Santa Ana's titular aspirations under a 47 to 7 score. That defeat cost Santa Ana a conference title and a chance for the Southern California streamer, too.

It will be remembered that George Hobbs, the Alhambra coach, kept his first string in the game until the last few minutes of play in an effort, apparently, to run up as large a score as possible. If the Saints should, but which is hardly likely, pile up an early lead this time the Alhambra men expect no mercy from Oliver or his players, especially those who were on the team last season.

Paul Out For Season
Norman Paul, star halfback, was the only Santa Ana player injured at Long Beach. The others will be able to see action Saturday, barring of course, possible injury in scrimmage this week. A muscle in Paul's knee was torn when he was tackled after catching a forward pass in the third quarter and the footed athlete, Southern California interscholastic champion in two events, is probably lost to the team for the year although there is a remote possibility he will be able to get in the San Diego combat.

Already handicapped for competent backs, Oliver intends to try young "Tony" River, the sophomore from Frances Willard Junior

Beach Squad Plays Covina On Thursday

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 22.—Huntington Beach high school will meet the Covina high school football team here Thursday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock in a practice game. Covina High won the Southern California championship in 1925 and 1926.

Smarting under the defeat by Brea-Olinda last Friday by the score of 40 to 0, the Huntington Beach team is out to beat Covina, and also Orange in the game here Armistice day. Orange defeated Brea and if Huntington Beach can win from Orange the three teams will fight out a three-cornered race for the Orange league title this year.

The team here will have to show a decided improvement in form to be in the county championship race, but Coach Harry Sheue and his team have plenty of fight left in them and may yet upset the dope.

JACKIE FIELDS DEFEATS JONES IN TEN ROUNDS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Before 12,000 fight fans including Clara Bow in a ringside seat, Welterweight Champion Jackie Fields of Los Angeles took everything that "Gorilla" Jones, Memphis colored contender, had to offer, and still won a decision by a fair margin at the close of their 10-round bout here last night.

Both fighters weighed in at 150 pounds—three pounds overweight—so the scrap was a non-titular affair.

Fields showed himself a real champion, both in ability to "take it" and in punching power, and his vicious left jab to the body slowed Jones down time after time. The "Gorilla" landed often enough himself especially with a right hook that had a habit of finding the champion's jaw, but there was never enough behind the blows to make them dangerous.

Jones took the first two rounds by a fast campaign that brought the fans to their feet and blood to Jackie's nose. The next three rounds showing signs of fatigue, got the sixth and seventh frames, but did not do much damage in either of them. The last three rounds were clearly the champion's.

Stars Will Train At Border Again

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—Although definite plans have not been completed, William H. Lane, owner of the Hollywood Stars, Coast of the Hollywood Stars, today said that the titleholders' spring training camp will probably be located in San Diego.

HOOKS AND SLIDES Henry L. Farrell

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Baseball was the favorite sport of Glenn Collet until she was 14 years old. . . . In the 12 years since then she has won the women's national golf championship four times. . . . Connie Mack made reservations for the trip to Chicago and had to cancel them when the Athletics rallied to end the series in the fifth game. . . . John McGraw's powers of divination were greater than Connie's for he had a ticket for New York and a parlor car stub in his pocket at the fifth game. . . . Detroit university's eleven won 18 straight games. . . . Emory and Henry recently lost to William and Mary by one point, after winning 23 in a row. . . . North Carolina snapped Georgia Tech's string at 15 successive wins. . . .

TIP FROM PREXY ANGELL
Not long ago Dr. James R. Angell, president of Yale university, wrote a piece for the papers advancing the idea that the boys, not the coaches on the sidelines, should direct the strategy of the football games.

Just how this idea would work out we are not quite sure, but it looks to be a kick in the pants for every football expert who ever tried to forecast a game. For, without coaches, how can the poor expert know what the blacksmiths and lecmen are going to do out there at any given time?

A great deal depends, of course, on how well the coaches can instruct the students who play football. Some coaches can teach the boys plenty before the game; others carry their direction to the extreme of calling for every move the gridiron warriors make, much as a chess master moves his rooks and kings. . . .

MR. ROCKNE'S ABSENCE
Take a case in point. Knute Rockne's Notre Dame teams are well-schooled in their game and Rockne doesn't have to be there to make the tricks click. Rockne was ill and absent during the struggle with the Navy, and that is one of Notre Dame's most important games. The Navy this year has a strong team.

The boys played, however, as though Rockne's wise finger were hovering above them, pointing, signaling, instructing. No one who read the story of Notre Dame's 14 to 7 victory over the Middies can have any doubt of that. Is it wrong to think that these players have learned enough football strategy to know how to carry on themselves, without their leader? . . .

MEEHAN'S DISOBEDIENT BOYS
Quite another story, with a different angle, was the defeat the mighty New York university team sustained at the hands of the Fordham eleven. As a result of that game, Coach "Chick" Meehan

PUNTS AND PASSES

BY GRIDDER

No matter how it fares in the won and lost columns, Santa Ana high school's football team probably will establish a new paid attendance record for future Saint elevens to shoot at before the season is completed. They certainly are off to a running start.

Final financial figures, not yet received from Pasadena or Long Beach, are expected to show a big increase over last year's totals.

Fully 5,000 persons saw the night game in the Rose Bowl between Santa Ana and Pasadena. There must have been at least that number at Burcham field last Saturday when the Saints and Jackrabbits played their thrilling scoreless draw. The schools split 50-50 on the gate receipts.

With Alhambra coming here Saturday and San Diego due later in the season for what may be a championship test, Poly field should be packed to capacity at least twice.

Santa Ana's team of 1921 holds the school attendance record. That eleven, which included such players as Don Williams, Earl Jabs, Bert Cook, "Benny" Wilcox, Ted Coffman, Newt Stark, "Jeff" Gravatt, Elliott and Everett Best, Harry LeBar, Cal Bell and Harold Knight, won the Southern California title and played to enormous crowds all the way through its schedule. . . .

"Cotton" Warburton, San Diego halfback, is leading the Coast Preparatory league point-makers, according to figures for the season to date. Warburton has made 22 points in two league games. He is the boy who won the 447 yard dash at the California State interscholastic last year.

Despite the fact that he was held scoreless last Saturday by Long Beach, A. Rebohn, crack Santa Ana quarterback, is tied for second place with Captain Ed Reed of San Diego. They both have made 24 points.

The scoring figures follow:

Warburton, San Diego	22
Rebohn, Santa Ana	24
Reed, San Diego	24
Morgan, Pasadena	19
Broussard, Alhambra	15
Rugh, Alhambra	12
Callabury, San Diego	7

The best tackle I have seen play this year is Captain Herald Hyton of the Santa Ana junior college squad. That goes for the big colleges, too. Hyton is big, fast, tough and smart. He knows how to handle himself and his opponents on a football field. Hyton is a cinch to make the U. S. C. varsity next year. I understand he is headed for the Trojans.

The best all-around back in the Coast Preparatory league is Al Rebohn, of Santa Ana. You can throw out his performance at Long Beach. The little fellow was in a brainstorm there but it was the only time in two years he hasn't played almost perfect football.

The palpitating public has asked me what I think about the Stanford-U. S. C. football game. I think both teams will score twice. I believe the team with the better goal-kicker will win. I look for the Trojans to score on a forward pass early in the game and I think Jess Hill will get away for a long run to a touchdown. I feel that the Cards will score on a long pass and tie the score late in the game on power. How is that for calling 'em. Right or wrong, we are always in there guessing. . . .

It looks like two former Santa Ana high school boys will be in the starting lineup, but opposed to each other. Jim Musick, the hard-riding star of Santa Ana's 1927 outfit, will be at fullback for the Trojans. Ray Dawson, captain and ace of the powerful Saint team of 1925, will be at running guard for the Cardinals, according to dope from the north.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees and Marty McManus of the Tigers twice hit home runs with the bases filled during the 1925 American league season.

Thick Skull Wins Match For Matman

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 22.—The thick skull of Able Coleman, Brooklyn, N. Y., lightweight wrestler, won him a decision over Cleto Kaufman, Columbus, Ohio, here last night.

At the start of the bout Coleman and Kaufman made a simultaneous lunge. Their heads met with a crack that could be heard in the ticket of rifles.

Both dropped unconscious. After a few seconds Coleman sat up dazedly and then fell across the body of his opponent. He was awarded the fall and when Kaufman did not regain consciousness for five minutes took the match by default.

Coaching skill, speed, power, determination, weight and reserve strength, the factors that go to make up championship football teams, are all possessed in great quantities by both squads. For the background of the game are two great student bodies, keyed up by a traditional rivalry of years' standing and both quietly confident, but not boastful, that their coaches and teams are the best that can be produced.

Eighty-seven thousand five hundred people—well-out for the Stanford stadium—will see the game that will decide which team shall go on to seek national honors and which team shall have to be content with waiting for next year to seek revenge. In every way, the game is to the followers of football a perfect "natural."

Practically every man on the varsity football squad of nearly 50 is expected to go to Palo Alto, according to Director of Athletics Bill Hunter. The squad and coaches will leave Los Angeles Thursday night, arriving in San Jose early Friday. The Trojan party will sail by bus to the Castilewood Country club, which is approximately 20 miles from the scene of the game and a light workout will be held on the club grounds Friday morning. The squad will stay there until late Saturday morning when the men will be taken to the Stanford stadium by bus.

Special trains carrying Trojan students, alumni and followers of the team will leave Los Angeles starting at 9:30 p.m. Friday, arriving at Palo Alto shortly before noon on the day of the game. Eleven special trains, six of them exclusively for Trojan students and alumni, will take the fans from the Southland.

ARBELBIDE, HALL GRADUATE TO FIRST STRING
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Howard Jones, coach of the University of Southern California football team, today was working earnestly behind closed gates to devise ways and means of beating Stanford Saturday.

Jones placed Garrett Arbelbide, big sophomore, in Tony Steponovich's end berth yesterday and Bob Hall, 215-pound tackle, substituted for Cecil Hoff.

WARNER ORDERS SECRET DRILL FOR CARDS
STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Coach "Pop" Warner has ordered secret practice for his Cardinals during the rest of the week and what he will spring against U.S.C. Saturday will be a matter of conjecture until game time.

Pete Heiser, regular guard, will be unable to start for Stanford Saturday and may be out of the Card lineup until the California game. He has an injured knee. Ray Dawson probably will start in his position against the Trojans.

Carl Planchon, promising guard, was wearing his arm in a cast today with a broken arm, sustained last Thursday in practice. At the time, it was thought to be only a sprain but an inspection yesterday revealed that the bone was

SHAWKEY'S JOB IS TO REBUILD EX-CHAMPIONS

BY DAVID J. WALSH
(I.N.S. Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Mr. Robert Shawkey, who has agreed to see what he can do about making baseball forget Miller Huggins, is coming in to town so that he can begin seeing about this matter right away; in fact, not later than tomorrow, at which time he is scheduled to sign a contract as manager of the New York Yankees for 1930.

Fortunately, there will be nothing in the document that specifies forgetfulness—or no—count. Mr. Shawkey merely will give the matter a try and the gentlemen who have discovered that they can't be ruled off for that are legion.

There probably are harder things than to try to fill the job of a man who won six pennants and three world series since 1921. There is, for instance, the business of trying to jump from the thirty-eighth story. As a rule, this doesn't work. Full well do I remember the last man who tried it. He jumped beautifully; as a matter of fact, it wasn't even necessary for him to ask for a practice jump. Nevertheless he failed. It seems that he had eaten a lot of cucumbers and, of course, the poor fellow died of a broken heart.

Won't Win Pennant
This case is cited simply to show that there are harder things to try than that which Mr. Shawkey's contract will call for. Just the same he undoubtedly will find himself placed on the spot so far as public opinion is concerned.

We naturally won't be expected to win the pennant in 1930. The Philadelphia Athletics will relieve him of that responsibility. But they will ask him to produce a contender, it being figured that they could expect no less from a ball club that has done all of the winning the Yankees' ten-year record shows.

Perhaps not even Huggins himself could have done this, since the ball club that did all the winning is rapidly becoming no more. This would have been all right for Huggins. He could have afforded a bad year or two. It won't be all right for Shawkey. He can afford nothing less than nominal success.

If he attains that, he will have proved his right to go forth and try some more. If he doesn't, he can sit back and wait for a friendly visit with the men who ultimately must try to replace Judge Landis, John McGraw and Connie Mack. I must confess that I admire Shawkey's assurance in accepting this offer. But he always was a gambling pitcher; at that, a statement that will be supported by many a hitter on whom he broke that curve of his over with the count three and two.

Recall St. Paul Stars
Shawkey's first move tomorrow, it is said, will be to go into conference with Ed Barry and Bob Connerly, of St. Paul, to complete arrangements for the recall of "Dusty" Cooke and Ben Chapman. This pair went big in the American association last year and the Yankees are figuring on them hopefully in their plans for reconstruction. It also is said that "Bubblers" Hargrave, the old catcher, will be bought as a play-catcher.

Thus, the tearing down of an old champion and the attempt to cracked. George Warner, the star end who injured his knee in the Pasadena game, which the Padres won, 6 to 0, played some Saturday but still showed the effects of the injury. He will be in much better condition Saturday.

Beatty Back in Suit

Melvin Beatty, who was out of the Compton affair with a bad leg, probably will be on deck for the Panthers. Leonard Natland, another cripple, will be playing again soon. John Dugdale, a quarterback, like Natland, appeared in suit yesterday and may be in trim Saturday.

Another boy who has surprised Cook with his stellar playing is Frank Miles, tackle. Big Frank was on the Don squad last year. He tips the beam at 180 pounds. Along with Captain Hyton, Tim Wallace and Ernie Stump, Cook is provided with four highly competent tackles.

Santa Ana is technically ruling the roost in the jaycee conference with two wins and no defeats but the game coming up with Chaffey will make or break the locals. Chaffey disposed of the strong Long Beach Vikings Saturday, 33 to 27, rolling up 27 of its points in 10 minutes. Freaks of football featured this scoring orgy, notably when Long Beach punted and the wind blew the ball back 25 yards over the Viking goal line to count a touchdown for the Panthers.

rebuild a new one are well under way. It isn't the pleasantest of sports for a young, untired manager. Still it is no worse than the job he had at the end of the 1927 season, which, roughly speaking, was none.

There is a lot of romance right now in this surprise appointment of Shawkey, waived to the minors in 1927, to one of the biggest jobs in baseball. But stern reality may come later.

high school, at Paul's old position in practice this week. Blower is a good passer and a very fair kicker. He is not particularly fast, however, and Oliver may have to fall back on somebody else, perhaps Lloyd Nuzum who had been converted into an end, the same position Blower has been playing.

Don Crumley, a letterman last year, is fast rounding into shape again after a series of injuries, and may get Paul's job. Jimmie Hall, the "handy-andy" of the club who played in the backfield and at guard at Long Beach, is another possibility.

Get Light Workout

Oliver gave his disciples very little work yesterday, sending them on their way before 5 o'clock, but it will be different today, tomorrow and Thursday. Lucky they weren't beaten by Jackrabbits, the Saints can afford no defeats or no more ties they would retain a chance for the championship. Alhambra, not as powerful as in 1928 but still a good team, is sure to be a troublesome adversary. Captain Brosseau and Ruger, veteran backs, have run roughshod over every opposition not even excepting San Diego which beat the Moors, however, 39 to 14. Brosseau and Ruger made two touchdowns and plenty of yardage against the Hilltoppers but got little assistance from their mates on defense.

LATHROP LIGHTIES WIN FROM ORANGE

Julia C. Lathrop junior high school's 110-pound football team scored a 6 to 0 victory over the Orange high school Class D eleven at Lathrop field yesterday.

Harnois made the only score of the game, late in the first half when he went over right tackle and then reversed his field to run 35 yards to the goal-line.

Andrews, Dye and Manning all played good football for the Spartans.

On Wednesday the Lathrop 1930 team will play the Huntington Beach "Cees" on Lathrop field. Thursday the Lathrop first team will journey to Brea to play the high school "Bees." The lineup: Lathrop (6) (0) Orange Brown LER..... Clayton Campbell LTR..... Squires White LGR..... Leichtfuss Manning RGL..... Sophs Win First Basketball Match

Girls' basketball in the Santa Ana junior college swung into action with the first of the interclass games played between Dorothy Harmon's sophomores and Elsiebell Hurd's freshmen, the upper-classmen winning, 34 to 19. Both teams played a fast game and were surprisingly accurate so early in the season. The game was even for the first quarter but the superior guarding of Westover and Spicer for the graduates cut down on the freshmen and the sophs gradually pulled into the lead.

The lineup:

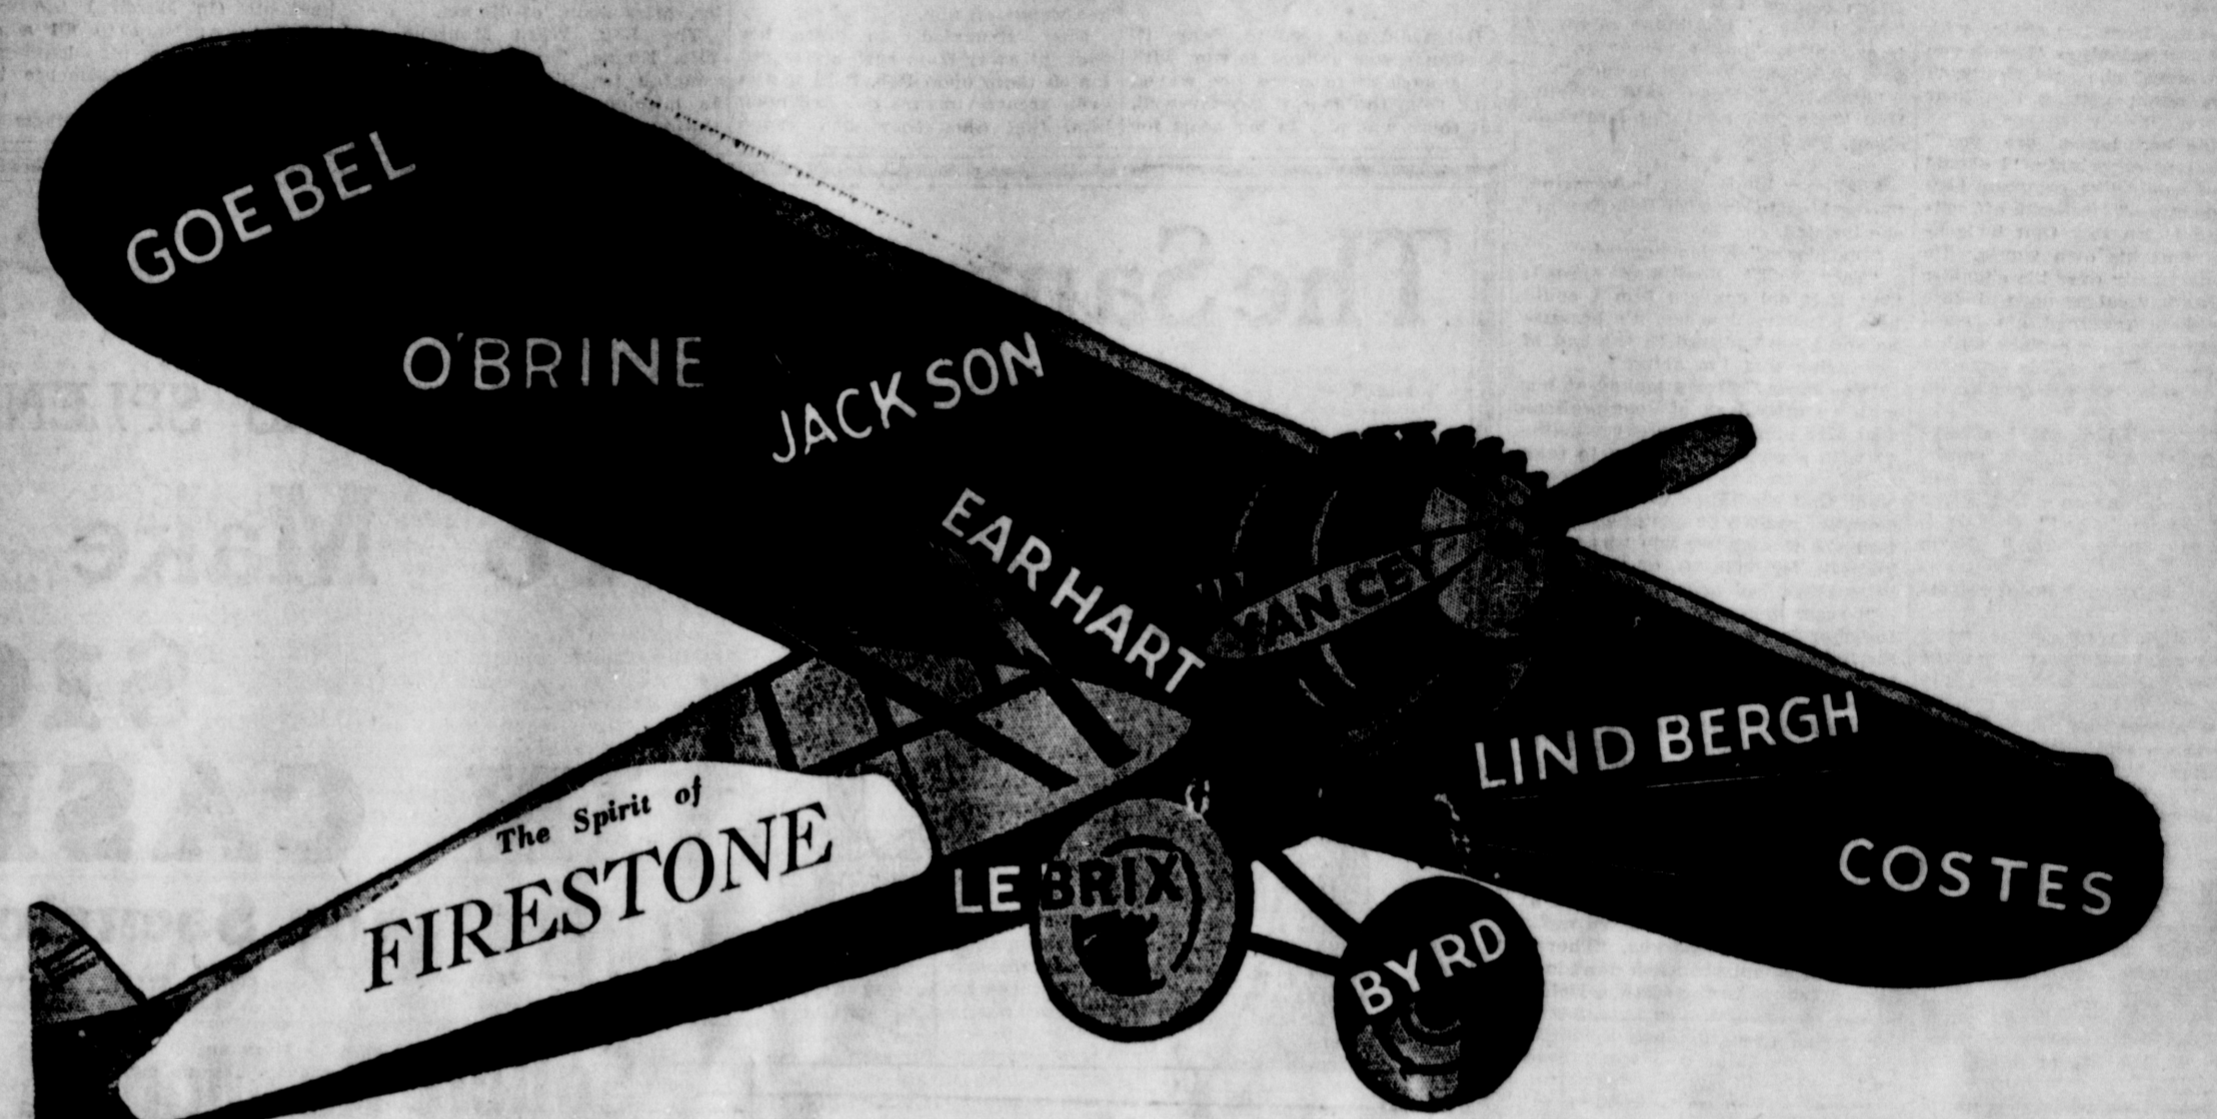

Sophomores (34) Pos. (19) Freshmen Woods (c)..... Samuelson Harman (c)..... (c) Hurd Thomas.....JC..... Bahr Goodrich.....RC..... Hendricks Westover.....RG..... Marshall Spicer.....SG..... Day Substitutions: Sophomores—Viera for Day; Freshmen—Whistler for Hendricks, Jimenez for Samuelson.

CHAPTER XLIV

Helen faltered and collapsed in a conveniently placed boudoir chair. She was as white as the handkerchief she lifted to her trembling lips.

Shallimar rushed to her with a bottle of cologne which she hastily dug out of her bag, and held it to Helen's nose.

Helen did not faint, but she did wish that she had gone to her own room instead of coming in here. Overestimating her endurance was a silly thing to do, she told herself. But it had seemed better to speed Shallimar on her way as decently as she could and then face her problem.

But the problem had not waited. It had filled her mind with panic. She should have known she must succumb to it. Her sense of guilt over disturbing her guest brought a halting apology to her lips.

Shallimar brushed it aside with a command to tell her what was really the trouble. Helen maintained that she was physically ill, nothing more.

"Well," Shallimar said, and she was plainly peeved. "If our school days count for nothing and you don't want to tell me why you and Miss Ennis went off somewhere without me this morning I won't tell you why I'm leaving so suddenly."

"You refused to do that before," Helen reminded her. "Yes, I know," Shallimar admitted impatiently. "but I meant to tell you, really, at the last minute."

"I'm sorry," Helen said wearily, "but there isn't anything I can talk about, Shallimar."

Shallimar bit her lip in vexation. "Something to do with Bob Ennis?" she insisted.

"Oh, please," Helen begged. "Very well," Shallimar agreed; "but if it did concern him I could help, possibly. You see, it's because he and I have played to the end of our string that I'm going."

"You mean?" Helen looked at her with an utter lack of comprehension. Her mind was too overwhelmed with a sense of disaster to take on added trouble. She did not conclude that Shallimar wanted to insinuate something unpleasant—that she was giving Bob up against his will, for instance, or that their little affair had been a serious one.

"I mean that our playing around together never meant anything," Shallimar explained. "I'm sure he's in love with you, Helen, and I'm clearing out before the poor bean gets any chivalrous ideas about me turning cartwheels in his head. He doesn't owe me a thing in the nature of an offer but he's so darned strict he might think he's been wasting my time."

She laughed and held the cologne bottle to her own nostrils, sniffing it faintly. Then she glanced at her wrist watch. "Ashe gave me a timetable," she remarked. "There's a train in 20 minutes. You don't look fit to drive me to the station, Helen. I'll say au revoir to you here, dear. She moved over to touch a maid's hair—"If you think you won't need me."

Helen passed on without a word in reply. She felt cold, as though a breath from an icy chamber had been breathed upon her. She put a hand on the balustrade for support; it was so numb she scarcely sensed the wood.

She went directly to Shallimar's room, where she found her guest engaged in packing a small traveling bag. Shallimar looked casually at Helen entered the room, but instantly she cried: "Have you seen a ghose?"

"After suffering for 15 years with nervousness, my case was a real test for Sargon. This splendid medicine has worked wonders for me and I bless the day I started taking it."

"I suffered for years with neuritis and was so nervous that many nights I would walk the floor for hours. My appetite was so poor that I hardly ate enough to keep me going. The little I ate disagreed with me and I became terribly weak and rundown. I was always more or less bilious."

"This new Sargon treatment was the first medicine to bring me lasting benefits. I have only taken seven bottles and now my nervousness has been entirely overcome and those awful neuritis pains have disappeared. I have a good appetite, eat heartily and digest everything without the least trouble. Sargon Pills rid me of nervousness, without upsetting me at all. I have gained five pounds, sleep good every night and feel stronger and better than in years."

Helen shook her head. "Ashe will get someone to drive you to the station," she said. "I'm sorry you won't stay, Shallimar."

"My dear, I mustn't. My work is out in the world, making men suffer."

She said it lightly but there was in her eyes the shadow of pain. The maid came and carried down the lighter pieces of her luggage. "Send Ashe up for these immediately," Helen directed, pointing to the others.

When he came she told him to have her car and someone to drive it at the door without delay. She was forcing herself, by sheer will power, to keep her mind on Shallimar's departure and speed her properly.

She was sorry to lose her friend, now when it would have been a great relief to know there was someone in the house besides the servants and Mrs. Wethering. But Shallimar did not want to stay; she could see that—it would be selfish to urge her.

"You must watch yourself, dear," Shallimar said in parting. "Don't let your heart break if you can help it. If you want a man get him. It isn't always possible but you can try. You see, I think your illness is of the heart, no matter what you say."

Helen did not need to deny it. Shallimar was obliged to run, with not a moment to spare. She waved back from the door, a gay farewell, but there was pity in her heart for the girl who could not run away from her trouble.

Helen sat very quiet for a moment, glad to be alone, but despairingly aware that the only person who might have been sympathetic without questioning her too closely was gone. She could have talked to Shallimar—at least she could have confided that she was faced with a heart-breaking alternative.

And Shallimar was gone, a faint, exotic, perfume lingered in the room as a reminder of her colorful personality. Suddenly Helen wanted to get away from it.

She slipped out of the room like a wraith and found her way blindly to her own cushion-covered chaise longue. She lay there a long time, too crushed to think constructively.

A well of black despair had engulfed her. She could not marry Brent—she could not. And yet there seemed to be a force which she could not defy that pressed the words, "You will, you will, you will," upon her brain like brands of fire.

She was helpless against the pictures that rose in her mind. Prison—confinement within a narrow cell—she who loved the stars over her head and grass under her feet—eyes to spy upon her, perhaps, when she lay asleep—horrible!

A shudder ran like lightning over her slender frame.

She struggled to turn her thought away from such a fate and fasten them upon Bob. Bob! It was even greater torture to dwell upon him. Just when they had ended their foolish quarrel—when happiness unbelievably sweet had come to them—this!

Until that moment, when the full import of what had befallen her swept over Helen, she had not guessed how cruel are some of the tricks of Fate.

Mrs. Wethering came to ask her where she would have her luncheon served, as it was Helen's habit to take it in any place that suited her mood.

She was denied entrance. But Helen was fast becoming an enigma to her, beginning with Helen's association with Eva Ennis, so she asked her question through the door and went away without protest when Helen answered that she did not want any lunch.

Late in the afternoon Helen went out. Mrs. Wethering saw her walking toward the lake. When the time came for the dinner hour and she grew past the housekeeper became alarmed and went into conference with Ashe about it.

"I'm afraid," she said, "that something has happened to Miss Nellin."

EL MODENA

EL MODENA, Oct. 22.—Word has been received from Mrs. Mary Lentz, who was called to Illinois on account of the serious illness of her aged mother, stating her mother was improved. Mrs. Lentz expects to remain in the east for the winter.

Week end guests in the Guy Field home in McPherson were Mr. and Mrs. White and daughter, Miss Jean, of Hemet.

The Rev. Ward Monselle and wife, Emma, have left from Wilmington for Honduras. They will do missionary work in the same station as Miss Irma Moody.

LAGUNA BEACH, Oct. 22.—Paintings from the Laguna Beach Art association will soon be making the schedule of dates and places prepared by Mrs. A. B. Marshall of this city under the direction of the Parent-Teacher association. The paintings are in two separate exhibitions of 25 each. One of them is already started and the other will be sent out November 1. They will make the rounds of schools of the county, remaining one week in each in most of them, though in some of the high schools they will stay for two weeks.

Ordinance Aimed At Operation Of P. E. Freight Trains

CARS WILL BE PERMITTED TO RUN AT NIGHT

With merchants and other residents complaining against the practice of the Pacific Electric company operating freight trains over its Fourth street tracks during the day, the city council last night gave first reading to an ordinance prohibiting operation of trains through the business street during day light hours, except on special permission of the council.

An ordinance similar to that introduced last night was in effect until resolution was made a few months ago to permit day light operation anticipated in the moving of machinery and other equipment to this city for the building of the plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company. It was pointed out to the council at the time that day light freight deliveries were necessary to facilitate construction of the big plant. At the time the council acted it was believed that construction of the factory building would start within two or three months after completion of negotiations for the site in the southwest part of the city.

Developments since have disclosed that the time is indefinite as to when building operations will start, although it has been intimated that there is possibility of the program being started in the early part of next year.

Traffic Congested

Commenting on the situation of the railway company operating on Fourth street in the daytime, Charles D. Swanner, city attorney, last night told the council that complaint had been made to him of traffic congestion when freight trains are on the street. It was said that the company had run during daylight hours a number of best trains through the main business street.

Passing an ordinance providing a 10-foot setback line on each side of Washington, between Lincoln street and Grand avenue, the council tabled a petition asking for a similar setback on the street between Main street and Lincoln. At the time of presentation of the latter petition, the city body referred to the planning commission the advisability of extending the setback line from Main to Broadway. The commission returned the petition with recommendation that the latter section not be included in the program.

Under a resolution passed, building, electrical and plumbing contractors will have to produce certificates showing that they have complied with a new state law before they will be given permits for doing construction work. The new law requires that such contractors take out state licenses. It was explained at the meeting by Councilman W. J. Kelly that the law was designed to protect the public from "fly-by-night" contractors.

Official notice was given the council that the railroad commission would conduct a hearing at the courthouse here, at 10:30 a. m., November 8, on the application of the city to build a subway under the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe tracks on East Fourth street.

Accept invitations

Invitations were accepted from the Seal Beach city council for the Santa Ana council to participate in exercises there next Monday night in celebration of the opening of the new city hall and from the Huntington Beach council to be guests of Huntington Beach at a luncheon at 1:15 p. m. on Armistice day. The council here will meet in special session at 6 p. m. next Monday, in order to complete its deliberations in time to go to Seal Beach.

The Christian Missionary Alliance was given permission to string a banner across Bishop street, near Main, announcing revival services in the church.

The Cope Electric company was given permission to hang an electric sign at 110 East Fourth street. The application of Mrs. Mary E.

TO OPEN CONCERT COURSE

Grouped informally around a wide table, the English Singers whose previous appearances in the United States have been greeted with a furor of interest, will sing their quaint old Elizabethan melodies for the Santa Ana public on the night of December 6, in the Santa Ana high school auditorium, as the opening feature of the Ebell International Artists series concert course.

EBELL CLUB CONCERT SERIES TO COMMENCE DECEMBER 6 WITH ENGLISH SINGERS' APPEARANCE

Do you recall the incomparable loveliness of Mme. Louise Homer's voice, the enchantment of the melodies woven by the London String quartet, the lyric beauty and strength of Arthur Hackett's singing and, above all, the wizardry of Mischa Elman's supple bow? Remembering these, do you also recall that it was through the instrumentality of Santa Ana Ebell society that such memorable programs have been given to the city during the last two years.

For it was just two years ago, under the presidency of Mrs. F. E. Coulter, that the society formed the International Artists series committee for the purpose of bringing to this city some of the outstanding artists of the world and thus filling a place in the cultural life of the community that had been empty since the Santa Ana Musical association, under the presidency of Clarence A. Gustlin, was disbanded.

And now the committee, under the chairmanship of Miss Lula Minter, is in readiness to launch its ticket-selling campaign for the season of 1929-30, with three outstanding attractions to be featured on the course. Of these, two musical numbers will find sharp contrast in the star attraction which will be the appearance of no less an entertainer than Will Rogers, America's best-loved humorist and "unofficial ambassador" to Europe.

Tickets Now On Sale

Tickets for the course were to go on sale today in the Santa Ana Book store and the members of the committee, Miss Minter, Mrs. Coulter, Mrs. S. A. Nau, Mrs. Good Adams, Mrs. E. B. Sprague and Mrs. J. H. Metzgar, have given a world of time and thought to the selection of artists to whose magic these tickets will form the key. It was their pleasure and duty to select attractions that should prove as valuable and interesting as those given in the past.

Their choice finally centered on the English Singers, a group of three men and three women, presenting the lovely old folksongs.

ENGLISH TYPE DECIDED ON FOR NEW BUILDING

The first meeting of the building committee of the First Christian church, held last night in the church office, resulted in a decision to make the new educational unit of English type construction and to locate it on the west end of the church property, which extends from Broadway to Birch street on Sixth street.

Preliminary plans considered last night by the committee provide for a construction program over a period of years that will result, finally, in a fine new church auditorium facing Broadway. The plan suggested by the pastor, the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, who has had much experience in church building, met with the approval of the committee in its preliminary discussions. This plan provides for two units for the Sunday school apartment and community service, each 42 by 70 feet in dimensions, separated by a 36-foot courtyard in which outdoor meetings and dinners may be held in the warm months of the year, all facing on Sixth street. This would leave 146 feet at the east end of the property for the church auditorium. Each of the units at the west end of the lot would be of two stories in height but would contain no basement, in accordance with California type construction.

Suggested type of construction in frame and stucco, but masonry walls, in keeping with the English style, also will be considered. C. E. Phillips, superintendent of the church school, advised that his department recommended a building that would provide two assembly rooms and 12 classrooms, to house the intermediate, senior and young people's classes. Other features that were suggested as necessary were a large banquet hall, capable of seating 500 persons, and a modern kitchen.

It was the opinion of the committee that the present buildings, including the Cabin and the Community house just west of the church, could be left unchanged by locating the first unit at the corner and that possibly they would continue to be used until the second unit was erected.

The committee voted to invite several architects to submit pencil sketches.

Members of the committee present last night were W. A. Gerrard, chairman; Horace C. Head, C. E. Phillips, W. S. Buchanan, T. D. Knights, Mrs. E. G. Summers, Paul W. Nef, and Mrs. Paul Johnson, the latter Sunday school department head, who was a guest of the committee.

SCHOLARSHIP IN MUSIC OFFERED TO EARL FRASER

Earl Fraser of Santa Ana prominent pianist, will be unable to accept a scholarship and position as instructor offered him by the University of Rochester, it was learned today.

When attending the summer session in the University of Southern California this year, Fraser enrolled in both original composition classes under Dr. Howard Hanson, who is known internationally as a composer and who is director of the famous eastern school of music. Greatly impressed with the compositions of the Santa Ana musician, Dr. Hanson urged him to accept a scholarship in the university and obtain his master's degree while serving as an instructor.

Dr. and Mrs. Hanson, Miss Mabel Woodworth, a faculty member of the school of music at U. S. C., and Miss Julia Howell spent a week and recently in the Fraser home here. Miss Howell urged that two of Fraser's talented pupils be presented to the noted composer.

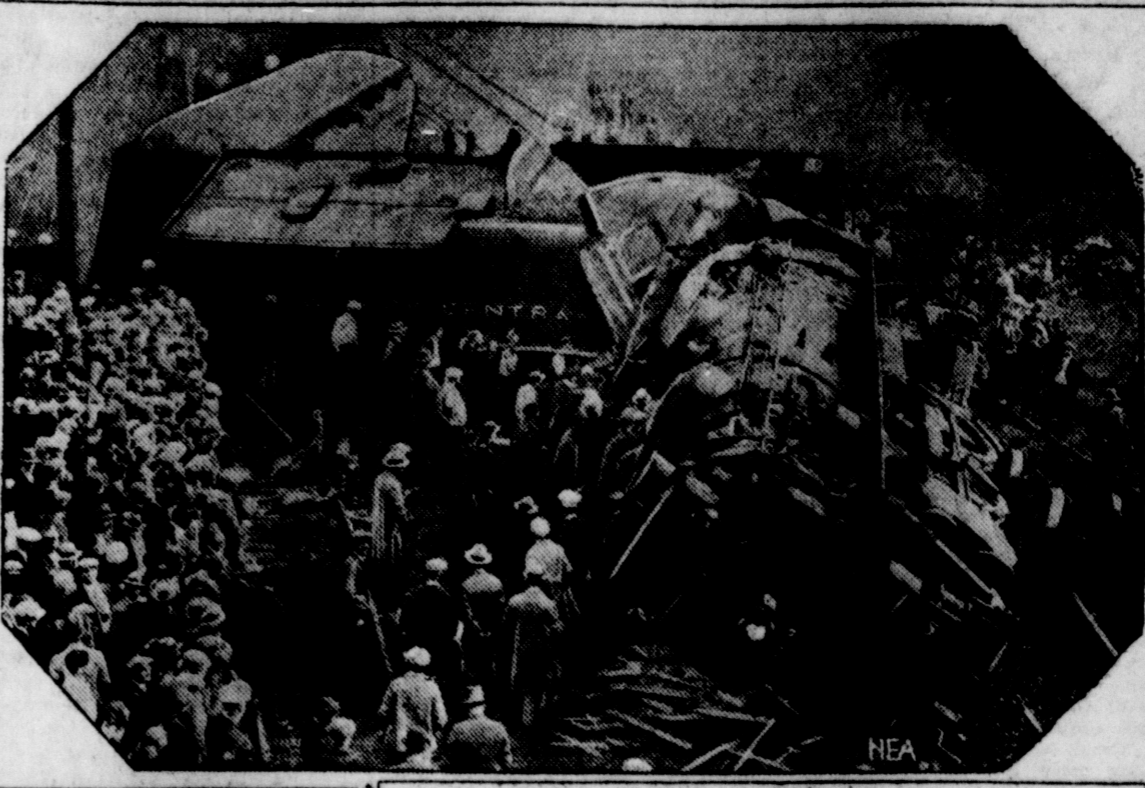

As a result of the visit, Fraser took Miss Beatrice Granas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Granas, of 2404 Santiago avenue, and Edward Stovall, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stovall, of 401 East Chestnut avenue, to Los Angeles and Dr. Hanson heard their work. He was greatly pleased and offered the young musicians junior scholarships in the University of Rochester so that they might be with their teacher providing Fraser accepted his offer.

Shortly after the private performance, Fraser was stricken with a nervous breakdown. His various duties had to be dropped and all thought of taking over the rare opportunity offered by Dr. Hanson was discarded. It is expected, however, that the position will remain open for him another year.

Mr. Fraser always has been particularly interested in composition work. His duties as an instructor, however, have in the past prevented him from carrying out his ambitions in this advanced field.

Ebbel Bridge Party Was Enjoyed by Many Guests

With draperies drawn against the too-ardent rays of the sun, with great baskets of flowers, with a sparkling cold fruit drink to draw guests around the punch table during every possible interval of bridge, the peacock room of Ebbel clubhouse was setting yesterday afternoon for a most enjoyable social meeting of the society.

Mrs. Edward M. Nealley and her membership committee and the courtesy committee of which Mrs. George Briggs took the chairmanship in the absence of Mrs. J. E. Gowen, joined in presenting the affair as one of the features of the "Every Monday for Ebbel" plan. Active in promoting the pleasure of the 75 or more members and guests assembled for the afternoon were Mesdames Nealley, Terry E. Stephenson, Charles Swanner, George Briggs, F. C. Rowland, M. D. Borgmeyer, P. L. Tople, T. F. Ham, C. A. Vance and J. E. Paul, of the two committees.

At the close of the bridge session, holder of high score at each table was presented with an Edison medal while the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of incandescent lights was further suggested by the first prize of a box of electric bulbs, presented Mrs. Borgmeyer. Santa Ana Musicians Presented In Recital

Last evening Kate E. McCulloch, director of the Orange County School of Fine Arts, presented the faculty of the Santa Ana studios in a recital at the Ebbel clubhouse which drew an audience of musicians from all parts of Orange county.

Franz Darvas, piano, opened the program. Tragedy, romance and medieval splendor were all portrayed in the wonderful music of the Chopin "Polonaise," interpreted by him.

A wealth of grace, charm and sparkling vivacity carried the audience in the exquisite group offered by Dorothy Huddleston and Lucile Beckwith, who were presented by Norma Gould.

Madam Leontina Rodon's dramatic soprano that has won applause in all parts of the country and marks her as one who meets with an equal measure of success as soloist and teacher, was heard in "Adieu Forets" from Tschai-kowsky's "Jeune O'Arc"; "Song of the Open," by La Forge, and "Cry of Rachel," by Salter.

Olimas Enlow Matthews again brought to her audience the extraordinary impression of not only exhibiting finger and bowing gymnastics, but also reproductive art, fire, pathos and tenderness. Her selections included "Suite Espanol" by De Falla, that includes "El Pano Moruno," "Nana," "Concion," and "Jota" and "Novacek's" "Perpetuum Mobile."

Tudor Williams possesses a voice of extraordinary compass and power and his singing last night proved beyond doubt his unusual ability. He gave "Di Sposa-di Padre," from "Salvatore Rosa," by Gomez; "The Lute Player," by Al-lisen, and "Riviera," by Cadman.

The wonderful magnetism of Norma Gould was felt in her Arabian dances. The audience was charmed with her artistry, finish, and individuality as well as her fascinating personality.

The lobby and lounge of the clubhouse were colorful with lovely baskets of radiant gladioli and the stage decorated with one large basket of beautiful yellow chrysanthemums was a lovely setting for the rare Bechstein grand piano, imported from Europe, which was used for the recital.

Little luxuries, articles that people secretly desire but often do not feel justified in buying for themselves — these are the most welcome gifts of all! The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

Is the Waist Line Where It Should Be?

Have you taken a good look at your waist line recently? Fall fashions say that waists are again located at the old stand and that we must indicate the fact by belts and so forth, whether the "handmarks" are there, or not.

If your waist measurement has quietly gotten out of hand there are certain measures you can take to whip it into shape: Exercise is the first step—exercise designed to melt down that little fat tummy and to make flabby abdominal muscles sit up and behave: the other measure is cutting down of starchy foods.

I believe I am safe in saying that fully 75 per cent among women suffer from constipation, due in large part to a diet too heavy with starchy foods, and lack of exercise. When starches are not properly digested gas distention is the result, and a large waist line is the outward sign of this inward condition.

Use mineral oil salad dressings daily, for this is an easy way to get this necessary lubricant. Eat but half the usual amount of bread, potatoes, pastry and starchy vegetables drenched in butter or cream sauce. Replace these things with more fresh fruit and leafy vegetables. Take 15 minutes some time in the day to briskly go through a good set of exercises.

In six weeks your waist line will be as supple as a willow and quite some smaller.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Pineapple-Almond Pudding

2 cups milk
3 tablespoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 almonds, blanched and shredded
1 small can shredded pineapple
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
4 tablespoons powdered sugar
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
Few drops of red fruit color
1/2 cup heavy cream

This recipe is large enough to serve eight people. If but half is used for one dessert, the remainder can be well chilled and served the following day with a hot custard sauce made with the two egg yolks, a little corn-starch, sugar and milk.

Put 1 1/2 cups of milk to heat in a double boiler, take the remaining half-cup and use it to dissolve the cornstarch. When the milk is hot add the sugar and salt, stir in the cornstarch and keep stirring until the mixture is thick and smooth. Cover and cook for 10 minutes longer.

Remove from the fire and fold in the shredded almonds and pineapple and when you think the heat has decreased sufficiently, whip in the stiffly beaten egg whites mixed with powdered sugar, and the almond flavoring. Put into the refrigerator until dinner time; just before serving whip the cream stiff and fold through the pudding. Serve piled up in sherbet or parfait glasses.

Coloring this pudding is as you wish. If you do color add the color drop by drop and beat thoroughly. It should be about as thick as strawberry ice cream. Another delicious way to make this dessert is to take peppermint stick candy and dissolve in the hot milk. Leave out the pineapple and proceed as directed.

Just 260 calories represent an individual portion when eight people are served. Of course this recipe stands well at the top of the energy food list and if weight has to be watched the rest of the meal should be chosen with regard to its fat-making calories.

Exercises that correct constipation also correct waist lines that have burst the bounds of fashion. So—when you cure one you cure the other.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for this interesting, easy-to-do set of exercises, offered free of charge this week only.

Tomorrow's recipe is one requested by a reader of The Mixing Bowl, a coffee cake made with eggs.

BREA

BREA, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Henry Kille and daughter, of El Paso, Tex., are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth Phillips, of West Cedar street. Mrs. Kille is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Phillips and she expects to spend the winter in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Fertig and family, of Bell, visited friends in Brea over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Fertig are former residents of Brea.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Casner, of Compton, were week end visitors in the home of Mrs. Casner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Fleisher, of West Cedar street.

The WOMAN'S DAY

Travelers return from China and the Congo with weird tales of the cruelty and torture to women, and we shudder and thank our lucky stars we live in a civilized country.

But if we introduced an unsuspecting savage, or even a hearty cannibal to certain phases of our modern—ultra modern—life, he probably would return to his folk and dwell on the cruelty of the westerner to his women.

What would he think, for instance, if he were taken into our smart beauty parlors and saw women, apparently chained to the ceiling by the hair of their heads—how would he suspect they were not being punished, but were voluntarily having a permanent wave?

Or if he saw a white-coated man lead a woman with dripping head to a chair between two metal standards, and then turn on two bright hot lamps to beat down on her brain for an hour, would he ever realize that it is by that vicious looking method that she achieves her natural looking finger waves?

SUFFERING FOR BEAUTY

If there be men who have any illusions about women being the weaker sex, they should never see them while they are being beautified, or being reduced.

The amount of punishment they will take without whining, in order to look frail, feminine and helpless, is a revelation. Apparently no torture is too great if it takes off a hip or puts on a curl.

And someone with a fine knowledge of feminine psychology keeps inventing and putting onto the market, machines that would have done credit to the Spanish Inquisition.

Which leads one to the inevitable conclusion that all is not torture that punishes the flesh. And perhaps what seems like cruelty among savages could be just as easily explained, if we knew the combination. You need to know why the punishment is inflicted in order to judge.

ELABORATE SCENES IN 'DANCE OF LIFE'

"The Dance of Life" musical comedy-drama, the scenes of which probably are the most elaborate seen in a single picture since the talkies brought action and voice together, opened here yesterday in the Fox-Broadway theater for four days.

Good dancing and clever songs are the highlights of the picture, while the tender love story runs throughout the film. The songs, including "True Blue Love," several of which are sung by Miss Carroll are particularly good.

The plot concerns a boy and girl on the stage who team up together at a time when both are down and out. They fight their way to the top and the boy falls in love with another girl.

Hal Skelly, in the part of Skid Janson, had the original part in "Burlesque," famous New York stage success, from which "The Dance of Life" is taken. Others in the cast include Dorothy Revier, Charles D. Brown, Ralph Theodor and Gladys DuBois.

Aside from the feature, a Fox Movietone newsreel is on the program.

VON STROHEIM IN 'THE GREAT GABBO'

"The Great Gabbo," latest production of James Cruze, and one that critics say compares favorably with some of his best pictures, including "The Covered Wagon," is the attraction in the Fox-West Coast theater.

Eric Von Stroheim has returned to the screen to take the leading part in a weird drama as has been noted here recently. It is the story of a crazed ventriloquist, so arrogant that he becomes hated in all the theaters in which he plays and so self centered that eventually he ruins himself.

Von Stroheim offers a masterful performance, while Betty Compson has the feminine lead in the show. Aside from the feature, a Pathe all-talking comedy, "Dancing Around," and a Fox Movietone newsreel are on the bill.

Luxury TOURS to DEATH VALLEY

THE MOST interesting paradox in modern travel—touring in luxury the wildest region in America!

You ride through Death Valley in a large comfortable motor coach while all around you is primitive grandeur...gorgeous coloring...and the hovering mystery of the desert. At night you find yourself in a modern splendidly appointed hotel. Luxury against the thrillingly adventurous background of Death Valley, makes a fascinating contrast.

Death Valley has a delightful winter climate. It contains the lowest point on the continent—310 feet below the sea level—yet it lies almost in the shadow of Mt. Whitney, loftiest peak in the country.

Death Valley TOURS

Beginning November 1, through sleepers leave Los Angeles at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays for Death Valley Junction. All-inclusive, three-day tour to Death Valley, from Los Angeles back to Los Angeles, $60.75—including railroad fare, lower berth and comprehensive sight-seeing trips and accommodations at Ryan Hotel and Furnace Creek Inn.

Mrs. B. L. Henderson, who has been at Seattle for several months past on a combined business and pleasure trip, returned home Thursday. Seattle is Mrs. Henderson's former home and she was with relatives while there.

But two deeds are needed to make Santa Ana boulevard an 80 foot right of way.

Plans for the proposed community building are being considered but the chamber of commerce as yet has reached no decision on the means of securing it.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller, proprietors of a local service station, returned here Friday following a vacation trip of a week. Mr. and Mrs. Miller went to their home at Pasadena Monday, remaining until Wednesday when they motored to San Diego and on over into Mexico, remaining until Friday. Mrs. Miller returned Sunday to Pasadena.

Is Love Enough? BUT

Sometimes I Think It Is BUT Sometimes I Think It Isn't

By VELVA G. DARLING

A woman I know who has been married for ten years is perfectly happy! The love of her husband and two small children fills her life to the exclusion of everything except an occasional bridge party or the theater. Her deep love for her husband alone could keep her completely occupied. And with her children, tripping them, keeping them looking like delicious pictures and reading to them out of gorgeously illustrated fairy-tale books her life is filled to overflowing. Her home is exquisite! Her husband one of the most successful and happy men I have ever seen. There isn't a doubt in the world that love is enough for this man and woman.

But, on the other hand, love has NOT been enough for many famous men and women! Francis Bacon said "Matrimony is an impediment to great enterprises!" The shrewd Flaubert writes "However refractory the Muse may be, she is better than any woman." Voltaire, Kant, Beethoven, Newton, Descartes, Gibbon and many others were of similar opinion. Love, to men of great ability, is in the great majority of cases, merely a passing and somewhat frivolous phase of their existence. They certainly do not have and have not regarded it as "the all in all."

Sometimes I think that love is merely one of the stepping stones to the complete understanding of life. Love brings contentment to the ordinary man—but profound Discontentment to the genius. And it is discontentment. INVARIABLY, which produces the thoughts that make for greatness! BUT it is also true that wealth and fame and all wisdom could not buy the supreme happiness of the little family in which love is enough. Fame and unhappiness, or ignominy and bliss—WHICH IS BETTER?

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAI COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The corn the Weones brought looked good. "Let's cook it, now, just as we should," said Scouty. "We will build a fire. Oh, gee, won't this be great. I love good fresh corn, fixed just right. I'll put a heap right out of sight. It seems I've grown so hungry that it's hard for me to wait."

The others promptly rushed around until a pile of wood was found. They fixed a little bonfire and then lit it with a spark. The corn was fixed on sticks above as Clowney said, "I surely love to help at fixing tasty food. This corn feast is a lark."

The blaze soon simmered very hot and everyone showed quite a lot of interest as the corn began to cook and get real brown. Wee Coppy stood beside the blaze and said, "I'll be the one to raise the corn off when it's done. Yes, sir, I'll gladly take it down."

At last the corn was cooked to taste. "Come on, there is no time to waste," said Carpy. "Let's all sit around and eat and eat and eat. We'll let kind Coppy serve us. He is just as clever as can be. I hope I eat so much that I can't stand upon my feet."

The meal went on. They all had fun because the corn was nicely done. The big ears disappeared real fast as each one got his fill. Just as they planned to rest a spell the others all heard Clowney yell, "Oh, look! A scarecrow's coming." This gave all the bunch a thrill.

The scarecrow looked real mad and so wee Clowney said, "Come on, let's go and seek a bit of shelter. This is no safe place to stand." They all ran right behind some trees, but one Wee one fell to his knees. The scarecrow pounced upon him and then grabbed him in his hand.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 22.—The University of California squad, fresh from its 12 to 7 victory over Penn, will arrive here tomorrow and California students today were planning a tremendous welcome. With a game with the Olympic club scheduled for Saturday, the Bears will have only a few days to get the traveling stiffness out of their legs.

SURE, THERE IS BIG SLUMP IN ORANGE COUNTY BUILDING; TAX BILL RECIPIENT SAYS SO

It seems that Orange county is going on the rocks. Nobody is building any new homes. No one is putting up business blocks. And it's going to get worse. Taxes are too high. This was just a friendly tax season greeting, of course, to the board of supervisors. It came today from Long Beach, from a person who received one of the 55,000 tax bills mailed by County Tax Collector J. C. Lamb.

The letter requested, and almost demanded, that the supervisors cut the Long Beach man's taxes on Santa Ana property right in the middle as a remedy supposedly for the astounding depression which is due to hit the county.

TWO MEN CHARGED WITH GRAND THEFT

Two men were held on bail of $1000 each in the Anaheim justice court today on charges of grand theft. They are H. E. Law, of Altadena, and E. V. Frank, of Los Angeles.

According to information obtained from Anaheim, the men are accused by Mrs. A. H. Sheldon, of Hollywood, of stealing $1900 from her in an Anaheim real estate transaction.

Law made bail and Frank is expected to do so within the next few hours. It was reported that preliminary examinations have been set in the Anaheim justice court for 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Walker for water service on East Fairhaven avenue was granted. The property is just outside the city limits.

First reading was given an ordinance establishing a 40-foot setback line on both sides of Flower street, between the intersection of Santa Clara avenue and the north line of tract No. 745. The setback was established to insure conformance in future subdivisions to the north with a line Harry Ball will establish in the subdivision of the Greenwood tract, known as tract No. 748.

Request of John Mangold for annexation of a lot 100 by 150 feet at Seventeenth and Whittier was referred to the city engineer. The applicant, it was pointed out, wants city water and sewer services for the lot. The engineer was directed to confer with Mangold with reference to increasing the size of the tract, as he owns the adjoining property.

Approval was given a motion increasing the salary of Harry Hays, office manager of the municipal water department, from $175 to $250 a month.

Plans were discussed for sending Councilmen Stanley Goode, Homer Chaney and W. J. Kelly and City Engineer Clyde Jenken to a meeting of the department of water of the League of California Municipalities, in Monterey, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Highway Projects Before La Habra Chamber Members

LA HABRA, Oct. 22.—Three road projects were discussed when members of the La Habra Chamber of Commerce met last night. N. M. Launer, chairman of the highway committee, reported on the proposed extension of La Mirada from Whittier boulevard to the Los Angeles county line.

But one right-of-way deed is necessary for the start of work on the La Habra-Buena Park road, Launer said. He also gave a report on the La Habra-Pullerton road.

Ira Weide was appointed a member of the park committee and will work with the city council on the matter of a city park.

The chamber gave $20 for the float which the Legion post will enter in the Armistice day parade at Huntington Beach.

John Torp is chairman of the Legion float committee.

BOARD TO HELP PLACE HISTORY MARKERS HERE

The movement of the California Chamber of Commerce for placing highway markers throughout the state, directing attention to points of historical interest, received the support and co-operation of the board of supervisors today when the project was outlined by T. E. Stephenson, of Santa Ana, member of the historical markings committee from Orange county.

Willard Smith, chairman of the board, will work with Stephenson in selecting 10 spots in this county suitable for the erection of monuments to locations of historical interest in this section.

Stephenson pointed out that the type of markers to be used, as well as the method of financing their erection, was being worked out by other committees of the state chamber. Boards of supervisors in other counties are being asked to assist in selection of spots for marking, he explained.

The Orange County Historical society has pioneered in this section with the work of locating spots of importance in the county's history. Stephenson, who acted on the society's committee when the work was launched, called attention to a location near San Clemente, where the first hospital in California took place, as a typical spot worthy of being marked. The first Valencia orange grove in the county, located near Placentia, also has been suggested as a spot of historical interest, he said.

Guest's recital of opposite views of the marriage of himself and Mrs. Guest, as each wrote his version at the query of an offhanded as to why, when and where they were married, was one of the strongest presentations in emphasis of the point that hardly any two persons view any incident with the same eyes.

Guest first started writing as a news reporter and it was his contact with humans in the course of his reportorial work that evidently laid the background for the fine sentiment and philosophy expounded in his writings.

A call for persons present from Orange, Anaheim and Huntington Beach, where Rotary clubs are functioning, disclosed that each city sent a large delegation. Virtually every service club in Santa Ana and many other organizations in the city were represented among the 450 persons present. Comment was made that the attendance was the largest ever present at a regular meeting of a service club.

T. E. Stephenson, postmaster, presented the speaker, introducing him as the apostle of optimism and good cheer, and a writer who eschewed the more vulgar things of life in favor of the richer as themes for his poetry.

Brief remarks by Clyde Downing during support of the Community Chest drive starting on November 12 and vocal solo numbers by Brown were other features on the program. Brown sang "Tommy Lad" and "Little Mother o' Mine," being accompanied by Alan Revell.

PROBERS ALSO CONTINUE TO HEAR EVIDENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(UP.)—As the senate started work on the first rate schedule of the tariff bill in a somewhat discouraging atmosphere, its lobby investigating committee pried further today into the activities of the writers of the bill.

The independent Republican-Democratic coalition which worked so successfully in eliminating the flexible provision and adding the de-benture plan of farm relief, was aiming itself for the battle over the industrial rates with ammunition furnished by the case of the manufacturers' agent who actually got into the secret hearings of the senate finance committee as the secretary of Senator William Bingham, Republican, Connecticut.

The first rate schedule on chemicals, oils and paints involves some of the rates in which the manufacturers' agent, Charles L. Eynon, of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association, was interested.

In this connection the committee called as witnesses Frederick Melrose, former fish expert on the U. S. tariff commission, and J. E. Whitcomb, employe of the Manufacturers' association under Eynon.

Melrose was quoted by a witness as saying Eynon was "a powerful man" as Bingham's temporary tariff secretary and that if anyone wanted rates changed he should call upon Eynon. Whitcomb is author of a memorandum showing two Connecticut manufacturers and members of his association were given information regarding secret deliberations of the finance committee while Eynon was in the committee room.

After hearing these witnesses the committee will drop the Bingham-William Burgess, legislative Eynon case temporarily to recall agents of the pottery interests. Senator William D. Borah, of Montana, wants to ask Burgess concerning his sworn testimony in the tariff bill hearings as a private citizen when he was in the employ of pottery manufacturers.

The other side of the sugar story will also be presented in the testimony of H. C. Lakin, the Cuba Co., N. Y., an advocate of a low sugar duty. Harry A. Austin of the U. S. Beet Sugar association already has testified his organization spent nearly half a million dollars since the tariff act of 1922, largely in the promotion of sentiment for an increased sugar duty.

Tomorrow the committee will hear the most prominent of all the legislative agents, Joseph R. Grundy of the Pennsylvania manufacturers association who raised $1,000,000 for the Republican presidential campaign fund of 1924.

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(UP.)—Heavy realizing after an initial burst of strength at the opening, the market today failed to halt further recovering tendencies in the main body of stocks through the morning dealings.

Electric Bond and Share, which scored an early six point advance, lost the greater part of its early gain and other leaders sold off proportionately from their early highs. However, the market as a whole displayed a confident tone and standard stocks were afforded strong support well above their previous closing levels.

Sentiment was aided by bullish utterances of Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank, upon his return from Europe and by indication of a greatly improved technical position in the general market. Prospects on continued ease of credit were also reassuring.

Around the end of the first hour of trading, gains of a point to more than 7 points were held by leading securities. Investors making the extreme advance. Cities Service, however, continued under heavy pressure, the loss selling around 12 1/2 of the previous session in a flood of liquidation from all sections of the dealings.

Tickers fell well behind trading on the floor shortly after the opening, and further confusion existed on the floor of the exchange.

Every group responded to the bullish statement by Mitchell, who is regarded as an authority. Inasmuch as he is a member of the reserve governors at New York and one who would have a vote on the reserve rate, his remarks were considered particularly timely.

Bidders were eagerly raising their valuations and 1 car lot was sold from fractions to two points. Texas Corporation was strong in their group, and they ended the day in volume of turnover. Southwestern Bell Telephone & Telegraph stock, at 101, but they later sagged slightly.

Convertible issues shared with the Industrial group in the telephone 4 1/2 at one time were held. Most of this gain was held.

Issues in the foreign section were smaller, but nearly every issue was above the previous close. South American issues and German issues were in demand, a lesson was quiet.

F. L. Bidlingmaier Rites Wednesday

Surviving Mr. Bidlingmaier are his widow, Mrs. Louise Bidlingmaier, one son, Theodore, of Chicago, and two sisters. Burial will be made in the Fairhaven cemetery and the local L. O. O. F. lodge will have charge of the service at the grave.

Mr. Bidlingmaier had been a resident of this city for the past seven years and was a native of Germany.

WHEN IT'S COCOANUT TIME IN HAWAII, I HOPE THEY FALL-L-L ON YOU-U-U!

YOU HAVE BEEN LISTENING TO MISS PARKER, BETTER KNOWN AS THE SWEETHEART OF THE AIR. THIS IS MUTT SPEAKING AS USUAL—

YOU ARE AGAIN LISTENING TO MUTT—BETTER KNOWN AS THE LON CHANEY OF THE AIR!

PARENT-TEACHERS

Arthur S. Corey, district superintendent of Buena Park, held a large and appreciative audience at the "Character Building" at the first Father's night meeting of Roosevelt P. T. A. held last week. Corey illustrated his address with references to the lasting quality of the Great Wall of China, the Pyramids of Egypt, etc., comparing those ancient monuments to the building of character, his theme being that "character is more lasting than marble."

Low 6th grade students under the direction of Miss Mathes gave a very clever play, using Halloween as their inspiration. The scenery and costumes were very lovely, and the children well trained. Miss Mathes was congratulated by everyone present on her work with the children. A short informal talk by J. A. Cranston and a word of welcome by Miss Verna Wells, principal, completed the excellent program.

Following the business meeting, refreshments of punch, coffee and cake were served by Mrs. Beall and her committee.

Logan School

Many Logan women had flowers at the Ethel Flower show. They received three prizes. Nineteen of Mrs. Hartner's women went to see the beautiful flower show.

Person-to-person long distance telephone service

Person-to-person long distance telephone service has recently been made available throughout Great Britain.

Lowell

Lowell school is justly proud of its attendance record for last year. It was the highest of all the city schools, including the high school.

The first, second and third grades have made new spelling books with pretty colored paper in Mrs. Fletcher's room.

Lowell school had its first baseball game Wednesday afternoon with John Muir. The score was 19-8 in our favor. The next game will be with Edison. The players were: pitcher, Roger McCune; catcher, Charles Connell, first base; Warren Mann, first short; Wells Roberts, second base; Claude Cannady, second short; Harvey Hemphill, third base; Sam Lockhart, right field; Wayne Harlin, center field; Willard Marsters, left field; John Adams.

In Mrs. Dudley's art room we have played many interesting color games this week. We know primary and secondary colors, their tints and shades; also family and related colors.

In geography the 4-A's are making a map of California. We are showing lakes, bays, missions, mountains and great trees. We are taking a journey through the state, and when we came to a new place, we draw what is found there on the map. California is very interesting to study, especially the missions and the Spanish founders and builders.

The 4-A's are having tests in every room. We are having reading, geography, history, arithmetic, language and hygiene tests. We don't think the tests are very hard.

EVENING SALUTATION

"About the best inheritance any man can leave his descendants is a clean bill of health."

—Ren Mulford jr.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR

As we write these words, several hundred Santa Ana folks are awaiting a heart-warming experience for they will hear Edgar Guest at the regular noon-day luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club. The columnist-poet has a peculiar genius for catching the emotions which are well-nigh universal. Many of us go about concealing them or trying to conceal them most of the time, because we feel a bit ashamed to express them in the crude, fumbling way which is the only way possible for most of us. But Edgar Guest has a flame of genius which enables him to express the deeper feelings of parents towards their children, the attachment to home, the memories of childhood, the pathos of passing time, the little domestic matters which are common to so many folks, and the sorrow of death.

It is a bit surprising to learn that this man who says so many of the things we all feel but cannot say comes from a people noted for being taciturn. He was born in England, in Birmingham, and was brought to this country when he was ten years of age, to Detroit where he resides at the present time, having been connected with the Detroit Free Press since 1895. His columns of whimsical verse which have been syndicated and in use throughout the country have gained him a following which is probably second to that of no other writer in the country. In magnitude it is indeed creditable but the finest phase of it is the tie that binds every one of his followers to him, a tie from each individual heart straight to the heart of Edgar Guest, who releases their pent up emotions and relieves the strain of hearts full to overflowing with just such emotions as he expresses with unique understanding to the perfect satisfaction of thousands.

For many years we have enjoyed a set of four Edgar Guest's books: "Just Folks," "A Heap o' Livin'," "Light of Faith," and "Rhymes of Childhood." There have been times when we have found in one or another of them just the right expression to suit our mood or bring a bit of humor to a trying situation. One of the most amusing instances was witnessing the surprise of a ten-year-old boy visitor, who had not yet learned that his mother was not the only back seat driver, when he found the poet's poem on the back seat driver.

This visit of the poet to Santa Ana will long be remembered. The Rotary Club is to be congratulated for its enterprise and generosity, and particularly, we understand, thanks should be accorded to Robert Brown, who was instrumental in bringing Mr. Guest to our city. We are confident that hundreds of people share our feelings of gratitude.

President Hoover has designated John McNab to recommend changes in the prohibition enforcement machinery. The last part of the appointee's name carries an ominous suggestion.

THE SLEEPER BUS

The sleeper bus system which operates between Los Angeles and San Francisco is rapidly spreading over the country. These busses accommodate 25 passengers. They are equipped with a pantry, and meals are served on removable tables. Already lines have begun to run from Chicago to Boston and New York and Washington. Shorter lines are running from Cleveland to Buffalo and Pittsburgh and Detroit.

Just what is to be the effect upon the railroad is not yet apparent. For quick transportation the railroad will still successfully compete with busses. But when airplanes begin to carry sleeping compartments, the railroads will have real competition. On short runs it will be the bus. On long runs it will be the airplane. For many years trolley lines have been doing some sleeper business. But the need of a roadway has kept this sort of competition down to an unnoticeable minimum. Nothing of the old established order is now secure. With the growth of chain banks, chain stores, chain utility companies, and all the rest, the individual is becoming a mere cog in the great social and industrial mechanism.

The Prince of Wales says he will not consider a marriage of convenience. That's one thing he won't fall for, anyway.

SOME RELIGIOUS STATISTICS IN A PRISON

A study of the religious affiliations of the men confined in the Ohio State Penitentiary reveals some interesting facts. It was found that 1185 of the men were Baptists. Nearly the same number were Methodists. About an equal number were Roman Catholics. The Presbyterians had a goodly number of representatives. Other denominations came trailing along. All of which indicates that convicts are not without religious convictions. In fact a few years ago one prisoner in the Pennsylvania state prison killed a fellow prisoner in a religious argument.

There must be some defect in the character of the religious training of men who become inmates of a prison and still hold to their religion. A strong dash of an ethical content is what is needed in the religion of these men. We fear that their religion has been largely a matter of theology rather than the pure and undefiled variety which "visits the fatherless and the widows in their affliction and keeps unspotted from the world."

THE CONFUSION CAUSED BY LABOR TROUBLES

The report comes from North Carolina that the courts are so glutted with cases growing out of the labor disturbances in that state that the process of the courts in normal matters is being obstructed. The Governor of the State has called a conference of leading men to advise on the matter. Out of this labor disturbance enough litigation and criminal trials have grown up to occupy the time and the attention of the courts for a number of years. And besides, the expense is enormous.

Experts who are familiar with labor situations know full well that much of this might have been avoided. Even the irreconcilable and uncompromising communists who have figured so largely in the leadership of the strikes in North Carolina have been aided by the methods employed by the authorities and the sympathizers with the mill authorities to put down the strike. It should long ago have been recognized that communism is a symptom of a very serious social disease. We have observed through a long experience that the apostles of communism only get a hearing and a following where industrial conditions are very bad. Where labor has grievances that can be adjusted the communist has no influence whatever. What is needed more than anything else when labor conflicts arise is a wise restraint and a conciliatory spirit. But before that there must be a desire for industrial justice and the recognition that a contented body of workers is the greatest asset that any industry can boast. Labor, especially in the South where the American mountaineer is involved, will not be exploited and cannot be coerced by clubs or slugs in the hands of the police or the self-constituted vigilance committees of private citizens.

Dramatic Criticism: Radio Style

Christian Science Monitor

The controversy over whether dramatic criticism is a proper function of broadcasting organizations, which has just arisen between an aggressive theatrical manager in London and the British Broadcasting Corporation, is typical of the difficulties with which a new medium that yields great power over public opinion has to contend when taking over some of the responsibilities which have hitherto been solely vested in the press. A London manager, in a letter to Sir John Reith, the director-general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, is said to have accused the B. B. C. critic of being "grossly unfair," because he expressed personal views about a certain play which the majority of the London critics did not share.

But criticism, it is generally agreed, is essentially an expression of personal views, and however well-informed and respected a critic may be, his personal likes and dislikes necessarily influence his final judgment of a play, a book, or a picture. So long, however, it is justly pointed out, as the critic confines his views to his paper, they are modified and in some respects even negated by the views of his colleagues. Wireless, on the other hand, not only allows the critic to approach a vast audience than any newspaper has ever reached, but lacks this corrective lens of criticism, and besides, by forcing the critic to condense his address before the microphone, lends, without intention perhaps, unusual force to his judgment of the merits of a play or book.

The official reply of the British Broadcasting Corporation does not really answer any of these objections, for it merely confines itself to the statement that all wireless authorities in England or elsewhere can do is to employ a critic of well-established reputation and allow him, unhampered and without fear, to express his opinions. Indeed, it is difficult to see how these conflicting views can be reconciled without suppressing wireless criticism altogether. However, as a partial solution, the London Society of West End Managers has prevailed on the British Broadcasting authorities to persuade their dramatic critic to refrain from mentioning any play which, in his opinion, has nothing to commend it.

The problem of wireless criticism, clearly, is not unsolvable. The wireless critic of the future, it would appear, will have to shape his address in conformance with the wider and more tolerant attitude which the microphone imposes as compared with the pen. Wireless dramatic criticism, in particular, could perhaps recognize this by limiting itself to a survey of all the critical notices that have already appeared in the newspapers. This might satisfy both the theatrical managers and the public without in any way preventing the critic from putting forward his personal view.

Three Lifetimes In One—An Edison Achievement

San Bernardino Sun

"Edison's working habits of 16 to 18 hours daily," remarks a newspaper writer, "together with his present age, 82, have given him the lifetime of three average men."

This may be true, but it shouldn't be taken as a hint for the wise extension of the working life of the average individual.

The average human being, lacking Edison's physique and his ability to relax and rest quickly, probably would fall miserably if he tried to lengthen his life by this particular method. Yet it is interesting that a man who had as much work to do as Edison and as many ideas to bring to fruition should have been able physically to get so much accomplished because of an unusual ability to concentrate through long hours and to do his resting in a comparatively short time.

However, not many of us could make such good use of three lifetimes in one.

Many Tourists By Auto

California was visited by 472,348 auto tourists from January 1 to September 1 this year, according to an announcement by Don Thomas, executive secretary of the All-Year Club, Southern California's national tourist travel development organization.

"Of this total, 105,981 residents of other states, using 35,545 motor cars, were tallied through twenty-three checking stations maintained at the state borders by the California Department of Agriculture, during the month of August," said Mr. Thomas.

"Two hundred fifteen thousand, two hundred of these tourists, in 71,775 automobiles, arrived directly in Southern California through the Yuma, Blythe and Daguerre roads, during the eight months period, a 15 per cent increase over the corresponding period last year. California autos returning to the state from trips elsewhere are not included in the count."

The Great Year-'Round Hunting Season!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

THE SHAME OF THE FOREST

It has been found that autumn coloring is due not to frost, but to the alcohol which the trees take in at this time of year.

When I gazed at the glorious reaches
Of the yellow, and autumn and red
On the birches and maples and beeches
With their far-reaching branches outspread,
And the willows, though something more sober,
Glowing gold at the fall of the dews
I thought that the frosts of October
Had imparted their radiant hues.

I could picture Jack Frost, through the hours
When the world takes its somnolent ease.
Dropping color in bright gleaming showers
On the legions and legions of trees.
The forest clad uplands adorning
Till the rise of the warm autumn sun
And thinking with pride every morning
What a marvelous job he had done.

But alas for a sorry delusion!
Jack Frost never played any part
In the gay and resplendent profusion
Of the colorist's marvelous art.
When we gaze at the trees in the autumn
Each arrayed like a brightly dyed flag
We smile, for we know we have caught 'em
Engaged on their autumnal jag.

Through the summer they stay on the wagon
But now they no longer recoil
From the juices that lurk in the flagon
Which lies deeply hid in the soil.
And we ought to be sternly censorious
When we gaze on a stately old tree
Becoming a little too glorious
As the evil result of a spree!

How Much Money Do We Need?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

We need enough money to carry on the business of the country. In other words, we need enough money to move everything we make all the way from mine and ranch to garage and breakfast table.

More business requires more money. This is certainly true in your own case. You cannot buy more goods unless you have more money.

It is exactly true of consumers as a whole. With a given volume of money in circulation and a given price-level, consumers can buy a given volume of goods. No more.

More goods cannot be made, year after year, unless they can be distributed. And they cannot be distributed unless there is more money in circulation.

That means, chiefly, more bank credit, for about 90 per cent of our business is transacted by means of bank credit; that is, by checks drawn on bank deposits.

But has industrial production in this country actually increased recently? It certainly has. According to the report of the Federal Reserve Board itself, the increase during the past two years has been 15 per cent.

That has called for a corresponding increase in bank credit. And that is precisely what the increase has been—15 per cent!

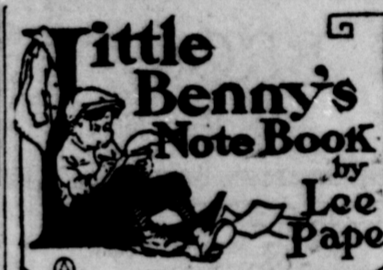

In short, there has been a sound growth of business, a corresponding growth of bank loans, and no inflation of commodity prices.

Yet this sound growth has so alarmed the Federal Reserve Board that it has persisted in taking measures to stop it. And the President of the American Bankers' Association has this month urged all bankers to do likewise.

The bankers all want increased production. That is real prosperity. And now, when bank credit increases at just the right rate to make increased production possible, the bankers throw up their hands in horror.

Yet to be afraid of increased bank loans is to be afraid of prosperity.

Pop was smoking and thinking
And ma came in carrying a skirt
With pleats in it, saying, Willyum
I'll haff to ask you a little favor,
I'll haff to ask you to slip this on a few moments.

And I'll haff to poltely but fermly refuse, yee gods, pop sed,
I havent worn a skirt since I was eleven months old, he sed, and ma sed, But Willyum dont be rediculous, I simply haff to fit this skirt and I cant fit it on myself, so just slip it over your hed and think nothing of it, its just a question of a few pins.

Nothing doing, I decline the nomination, pop sed. Yee gods, think of the possible consequences,
he sed.
Now Willyum what could possibly happen? ma sed, and pop sed, All sorts of things, suppose the house cawt on fire and the firemen berst in here and cawt me with a skert on, what would they do? They'd say, Let him bern, and go on about their bizness,
thats what they'd do, and no jury in the land would convict them. Nothing doing, wait till Benny grows up and try it on him, if he's weak enough to let
you. And thats another thing, do you think I want a son of mine spredding the report that he saw his father waitting around the house with a skert on, I should say not, pop sed.

I wont tell anybody, pop, I sed.
Go ahead, put it on, I sed and he sed, whats this, treason? and ma sed, O well, all rite, but I insist on one thing, if you wont do me this favor you'll haff to take me around to the Narcississ, theres a picture there with Baby
Dumpling in it and everybody says she's too cute for words, she ax-ually tawks in this picture, of course you cant understand what she says 'well because she has a decider lip, but that makes it all the more cunning.

Yee gods, leed me to the skert, pop sed. And ma put it on him over his hed and started to pin it in different places, pop looking the funniest I ever saw him, nad he sed, By gollies, I passed the Narcississ today and I didnt see anything about Baby Dumpling.
Benny, look in the paper and see whats at the Narcississ, I bieve this is just a trap, he sed, and ma sed, Never mind, hee hee, Ill

ferents, hee hee.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By Glenn Frank

REDISCOVERING AMERICA

A little while ago I stood before 10,000 Italians who had become American citizens and joined with them in the celebration of the memorable adventure of Christopher Columbus, Genoese genius extraordinary, one of those rare spirits who had the courage to sail into the unknown and the capacity to arrive somewhere.

As I looked into these 10,000 Latin faces, it seemed to me that we were encompassed about by a vast cloud of witnesses, the unseen spirits of all those Italian geniuses of art, of religion, of science, of statecraft, whose memories have made Italian history a luminous chapter in the story of the human adventure.

Virgil, Horace, Catullus, Sallust, Plutarch, Boccaccio, Dante, Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Galileo, St. Francis, the gay troubadour of Christ, Mazzini, to me the most exalted and illuminated spirit that has walked the ways of men since the Great Galilean walked into the heart of humanity, Carducci, Garibaldi, Cavour, and so on to the end of a list that might almost make us believe that God had played favorite with a particular race.

Being dead, they still live, and the immortality of their genius still lives to water the parched roots of the world's conscience and the world's culture.

I listened to the recounting of the story of Columbus, as is the custom of such anniversary occasions.

The prophetic outreaching of his spirit. The struggles he underwent for recognition and ration.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

PRESENTS FOR THE TEACHER

Children delight in making gifts to the teacher. It, for the time at least, raises them to the level with the person who is so far above them all other days in the year. It makes the child feel very important and proud to carry a dainty package, beribboned and sealed and wrapped with gorgeousness, but what happens after that?

Perhaps the teacher is pleased. Usually she is not. A teacher is the last person in the world who should be under obligations for value received to those to whom he ministers and admonishes. It is very hard to be properly severe with the naughty child who had just handed you a gift. It is difficult to administer even-handed justice to those who have brought gifts to the throne. The tone is just a bit softened, the edge a little smoothed, when dealing with them. All that puts the teacher at disadvantage.

Of course the child did not supply the gift. All he did was carry it and deliver it before the admiring congregation of the giftless. Mother purchased the gift and had it arrayed for the occasion. It is only human for mother to expect that the teacher will remember this kindness when the occasion demands, say at promotion time, graduation and the like.

All that is bad enough but the worst is to come. There are always children in the class who cannot make gifts. They sit silently in their benches, big-eyed and sad, while all the hub-dub of presentation and thanks and admiration goes on. They are

FIRST STEAMER IN WEST

One hundred and eighteen years ago today, on October 22, 1811, the first steamboat on western waters, the "New Orleans," left Pittsburgh for New Orleans via the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

The next few years saw an amazing increase in traffic on the inland waterways. Until 1825 when the Erie canal was opened, the Ohio was the great commercial and industrial link between the east and the west.

Until the closing years of the 19th century, the famous old river packets plied up and down the Ohio's winding 1000-mile trail from Pittsburgh to Cairo, and beyond. Then, as suddenly as it had started, river travel dropped to a minimum, wharves rotted, scores of packets were thrown into the discard, and the inland waterway seemed doomed as a main artery of commerce.

But government engineers were convinced of its practicability as an important link in the nation's transportation system, and the Ohio river federal canalization project was started. The gigantic engineering work, costing $188,000,000, was completed this fall. By means of 60 movable dams and locks, a nine-foot water stage is maintained throughout the length of the river and this gateway to commerce has been reopened.
